manage a weather station through twelve continuous months Watkins was younger than anyone under his command But he had several daring trips to the Arctic under his belt and no one doubted his judgement The first crisis came in the fall when a snowstorm stranded a resupply mission halfway to the top for many weeks When they arrived at the ice cap there were not enough provisions and fuel for another two man shift so the station would have to be abandoned Then team member August Courtauld made an astonishing offer To enable the mission to go forward he would monitor the station solo through the winter When a team went up in March to relieve Courtauld after weeks of brutal effort to make the 130 mile journey they could find no trace of him or the station By the end of March Courtauld s situation was desperate He was buried under an immovable load of frozen snow and was disastrously short on supplies On April 21 four months after Courtauld began his solitary vigil Gino Watkins set out inland with two companions to find and rescue him David Roberts veteran mountain climber and chronicler of adventures Washington Post draws on firsthand accounts and archival materials to tell the story of this daring expedition and of the epic survival ordeal that ensued
