When political parties make policy decisions they are influenced by the competition they face from other parties This book examines how party competition and party systems affect reforms of social protection Featuring a historical comparison of Italy and Germany post 1945 the book shows how a high number of parties and ideological polarisation lead to fragmented and unequal social benefits Utilising a comparative approach the author brings together two important issues in welfare state research that have been insufficiently investigated Firstly the complex influence of party competition on social policy making and second how some social groups enjoy better social protection than others Moving beyond the two countries of the case study the book proposes an innovative framework for studying segmentation of social protection and applies this framework to a wider
