5 pages | 1164 words

Most of us have had at least one really great teacher and one really bad one. We know what we like and expect in a teacher and judge them based on that. I have had teachers over the years whom others have not liked. There were also other teachers I thought did a horrible job but other students thought were the best they ever had. Most of what people perceive as a good or bad teacher is usually based on things like personalities and preferred learning styles. But all good teachers have a few things in common that is universal whether or not we like them and/or their style.

The first thing a teacher of the Craft has to have is knowledge of the subject at hand. You can not teach what you do not know. It will become very apparent very quickly that you know not of what you speak if you try. That does not mean that a good teacher needs to know everything. They should just be knowledgeable enough to be creditable and for the most part accurate. A good teacher should be honest. Honest enough to admit if they don't know the answer to a specific question and honest enough to look into it and get back to the student in a timely fashion.

A good teacher should be honest enough to admit being incorrect. If s/he makes a mistake or imparts false information s/he should be able to admit that the mistake or error was made. Everyone makes mistakes at some point but what makes others trust your words is the ability to admit you were wrong and correct the mistake. A good teacher should be humble. Teachers are not Gods. They do impart knowledge not previously known but they are not invincible or infallible. Being able to admit mistakes, accept constructive criticism and correct errors is all a part of learning and teaching.

A good teacher should be able to learn something from his/her students. There is always something more you can learn. Even a different perspective can be a learning experience. You don't have to agree with another's opinion or belief to learn from it either. Teaching and/or learning is not brainwashing. A good teacher should respect each student as an individual. Each person is unique. Differences of opinion, attitude, personality, etc should be celebrated. The classroom (or where ever the teaching/learning occurs) is not a place to squash the individual. It is a place to enlighten and open the mind.

A good teacher should be patient and flexible. Not everyone learns at the same pace or in the same way. There may be some students who can pick up on an idea or concept very quickly, there are some that need more time and one on one tutoring, and then there are some who may never understand. A good teacher knows that sometimes you have to slow the pace down for those who don't quite understand yet keep it interesting enough for those who already do. A good teacher should be tolerant....

Developing Writers of Argument Michael W. Smith, Jon-Philip Imbrenda, 2017-12-22 The ability to make effective arguments is not only necessary in students' academic lives; it's a transferable skill that's essential to students' future success as critical thinkers and contributing members of society. But in the here and now, how do we engage students and ensure they understand argument writing's fundamental components? How do we take them from "Here's what I think" to "Here's what I think. Here's what makes me think that. And here's why it matters." This stunning full-color book by Michael Smith and Jon Philip Imbrenda shows the way with ready-to-implement lessons that make argument writing topical and relevant. Students are first asked to form arguments about subjects that matter to them and then to reflect on the structure of those arguments—a process that provides learners with valuable reusable structural models. Throughout the book, the authors provide helpful instructional tools, including literary nonfiction and author-created simulated texts that inspire different points of view. Essential questions to create a context that rewards argumentation. Lessons introducing students to the three essential elements of an argument: claim, data, and warrant, and how to make each effective. Questioning probes, semantic differential scales, and other innovative instructional approaches. Samples of writing from the authors' own students and enlightening details on how this work informed the authors' subsequent teaching approach. Complete with guidance on applying the lessons/techniques in a broader unit-wide context. Developing Writers of Argument offers a practical approach for instructing students in this crucial aspect of their lifelong development.
