Page v Fictions of America Judie Newman, 2007-12-04 The Internet has had a huge impact on channels of communication and information reaching across time and space to connect the world through globalisation. In this Internet led world, story links to story, windows open on new stories and no overall authority establishes priority. This sense of globalisation has raised many questions for contemporary American Novelists: primarily the usefulness or redundancy of narrative and its potentially adaptive function. What are the right stories for such a broadband world? How do contemporary American novelists respond to issues such as the influence of the multinational corporation and its predecessors, human rights, Imperialism, the literary work as a marketable commodity, translation as betrayal, data overload and the implosion of the virtual into the biosphere? Is globalisation inevitable or is it a fiction which turns into reality? Fictions of America explores these questions and looks at the ways in which India, China and Africa can be said to have underwritten American culture, how literature has been marketed globally and how novelists have answered back to power with resistant fictions. Judie Newman examines a wide range of fiction from the mid-nineteenth to the twenty-first century, including the transnational adoption narrative, short story, historical novel, slave narrative, international bestseller and Western, to illustrate her argument. Looking closely at authors such as Bharati Mukherjee, John Updike, Emily Prager, Hannah Crafts, Zora Neale Hurston, David Bradley, Peter Heg and Cormac McCarthy, Fictions of America provides a bold response to the crucial questions raised by globalisation.

Uneasy Dreams Gary A. Smith, 2006-03-22 There has been a tremendous amount of renewed interest in the output of Britain's Hammer Films. But there remain a great number of worthwhile British horror films made at the same time by other companies that have received little attention. The author provides a comprehensive listing of British horror films, including science fiction, fantasy and suspense films containing horror genre elements that were released between 1956 and 1976, the Golden Age of British horror. Entries are listed alphabetically by original British title, from Vincent Price in The Abominable Dr Phibes (1971) to Zeta One (1969). Entries also include American title, release information, a critique of the film and the film's video availability. The book is filled with photographs and contains interviews with four key figures: Max J. Rosenberg, cofounder of Amicus Productions, one of the period's major studios; Louis M. Heyward, former writer, film executive and producer; Aida Young, film and television producer.

and Gordon Hessler director of such films as The Oblong Box and Murders in the Rue Morgue
