Helen Mitchell,New Holland Publishers Pty, Limited,Arthur Goldstruck,1997 The Hitchhiker's Guide to Going Mobile Arthur Goldstuck,2006 The Hitchhiker s Guide to Going Wireless quickly established itself as the essential guide to mobile technology in South Africa Going Mobile starts where Wireless left off and shows how the vision for the future is becoming a reality today Wireless talked about the future high speed wireless technology called WiMax and already WiMax services are being offered commercially The future is rushing up on us so fast that the time for a new edition of the Hitchhiker s Guide is now As in Wireless we ask the critical questions What does it all mean Where is it all going How do ordinary people tap into this communication revolution Here is a guide that once again catches the wave of interest and activity that taps into the buzz and also sets the mobile agenda for ordinary people and businesses throughout South Africa The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Internet Arthur Goldstuck,1995 The Hitchhiker's Guide to Going Wireless Arthur Goldstuck,2005 Culture of the Internet Sara Kiesler,2014-02-04 As we begin a new century the astonishing spread of nationally and internationally accessible computer based communication networks has touched the imagination of people everywhere Suddenly the Internet is in everyday parlance featured in talk shows in special business technology sections of major newspapers and on the covers of national magazines If the Internet is a new world of social behavior it is also a new world for those who study social behavior This volume is a compendium of essays and research reports representing how researchers are thinking about the social processes of electronic communication and its effects in society Taken together the chapters comprise a first gathering of social psychological research on electronic communication and the Internet The authors of these chapters work in different disciplines and have different goals research methods and styles For some the emergence and use of new technologies represent a new perspective on social and behavioral processes of longstanding interest in their disciplines Others want to draw on social science theories to understand technology A third group holds to a more activist program seeking guidance through research to improve social interventions using technology in domains such as education mental health and work productivity Each of these goals has influenced the research questions methods and inferences of the authors and the look and feel of the chapters in this book Intended primarily for researchers who seek exposure to diverse approaches to studying the human side of electronic communication and the Internet this volume has three purposes to illustrate how scientists are thinking about the social processes and effects of electronic communication to encourage research based contributions to current debates on electronic communication design applications and policies and to suggest by example how studies of electronic communication can contribute to social science itself

DFR Medicine and the Internet Bruce C. McKenzie, 1996 Most new Internet users find it difficult to locate what they want or even to find out how to get started Many end up buying a book on computers another on modems and yet another on the Internet without locating exactly the information they need There are a number of Internet guides available However this book is different in that it deals specifically with the medical resources and bulletin boards and it provides a foundation in the art of getting computers to talk to each other before even mentioning the Internet Much of the book is presented in simple question and answer style The doctor who would like to get involved but has no understanding of what a modem is or does or where to get the equipment will find the answers in this book Pricing Communication Networks Costas Courcoubetis, Richard Weber, 2003-07-25 Traditionally engineers devised communication services without reference to how they should be priced In today s environment pricing is a very complex subject and in practice depends on many parameters of the actual market including amount of traffic architecture of the network technology and cost The challenge is to provide a generic service model which accurately captures aspects such as quality and performance and can be used to derive optimal pricing strategies Recent technology advances combined with the deregulation of the telecommunication market and the proliferation of the internet have created a highly competitive environment for communication service providers Pricing is no longer as simple as picking an appropriate model for a particular contract There is a real need for a book that explains the provision of new services the relation between pricing and resource allocation in networks and the emergence of the internet and how to price it Pricing Communication Networks provides a framework of mathematical models for pricing these multidimensional contracts and includes background in network services and contracts network technology basic economics and pricing strategy It can be used by economists to fill in the gaps in their knowledge of network services and technology and for engineers and operational researchers to gain the background in economics required to price communication services effectively Provides a broad overview of network services and contracts Includes a primer on modern network technology and the economic concepts relevant to pricing and competition Includes discussion of mathematical models of traffic flow to help describe network capability and derive pricing strategies Includes coverage of specialist topics such as regulation multicasting and auctions Illustrated throughout by detailed real examples Suitable for anyone with an understanding of basic calculus and probability Primarily aimed at graduate students researchers and practitioners from electrical engineering computer science economics and operations research Pricing Communication Networks will also appeal to telecomms engineers working in industry Assessing Information on the Internet Martin Dillon, OCLC.
