Urban Tourism in the Developing World Gustav Visser, 2017-07-28 Over the past decade the field of urban tourism has consolidated with the appearance of several books that concentrate upon the Western European and North American experience Recently the scope and range of urban research has widened considerably including the welcome appearance of studies that examine the tourism phenomenon in cities outside the Euro American heartland Despite this growing international body of debate and scholarship on tourism and cities particularly in the developed North literature that relates to the developing world as a whole and to Africa in particular remains sparse The task of Urban Tourism in the Developing World The South African Experience is to augment the current international scholarship concerning urban tourism in the developing world More especially the contributors draw attention to a range of case studies from South Africa that provide some starting points to address the uneven scholarly coverage of urban tourism the African context has received to date In addition the research material presented here seeks to contribute toward raising the South African and indeed the African profile within growing international scholarship concerning issues of urban tourism and development This collection aims to expand an emerging South African and African tourism research voice concerning the tourism and development nexus as well as to stem critiques that this body of research appears to have developed in a theoretical vacuum divorced from broader international tourism research discourses This collection of essays not only further develops an independent South African tourism perspective but also presents research that is closely tied to international urban tourism research debates In addition this analysis of urban tourism in the South African context enriches the rather Western oriented theories of urban tourism discourse through its emphasis on how urban tourism is evolving in urban Africa

Progressing Tourism Research
Herbert William Faulkner, Bill Faulkner, 2003 Professor Bill Faulkner was the father of tourism research in Australia having spent 20 years in the field first within government and then in academe He was a visionary whose impact on the tourism research field extended well beyond Australia This work contains a collection of Faulkner s publications grouped thematically under the headings Methods Events Destinations and Research Agenda The sections demonstrate how his thinking evolved over time and influenced the intellectual development of the field itself An introductory chapter describes Faulkner s life and the contribution that he made to the field of tourism research

Coastal Mass Tourism Bill Bramwell,2004-02-05

The Mediterranean coastal regions of Southern Europe have long been world leaders in mass tourism This book examines some key questions for tourism development in these areas with implications for similar regions across the world The standardised forms of mass tourism are diversifying with more specialised forms notably those based on nature culture and heritage and those catering for special interests There is a growing spectrum of modes of tourism with an emphasis on variety flexibility and permeability Both mass tourism and the more diversified forms substantially impact on sustainable development Policies promoting sustainable development are often of two main types developing smaller scale alternative tourism products that are intended to be less damaging to the environment and society and secondly attempts to make mass tourism coastal resorts more sustainable But there has been little critical assessment of these policies either evaluating their basic assumptions or their successes and failures in practice This edited book critically examines these issues for varied coastal regions in Southern Europe including case studies from Spain Croatia Turkey and north and south Cyprus
