Rachilde and French Women's Authorship Melanie Hawthorne,2001-01-01 Under the assumed name Rachilde Marguerite Eymery 1860 1953 wrote over sixty works of fiction drama poetry memoir and criticism including Monsieur V nus one of the most famous examples of decadent fiction She was closely associated with the literary journal Mercure de France

inspired parts of Oscar Wilde's The Picture of Dorian Gray and mingled with all the literary lights of the day Yet for all that very little has been written about her Melanie C Hawthorne corrects this oversight and counters the traditional approach to Rachilde by persuasively portraying this eccentric as patently representative of the French women writers of her time and of the social and literary issues they faced Seen in this light Rachilde's writing clearly illustrates important questions in feminist literary theory as well as significant features of turn of the century French society Hawthorne arranges her approach to Rachilde around several defining events in the author's life including the controversial publication of Monsieur V nus with its presentation of sex reversals Weaving back and forth in time she is able to depict these moments in relation to Rachilde's life work and times and to illuminate nineteenth century publishing practices and rivalries including authorial manipulations of the market for sexually suggestive literature The most complete and accurate account yet written of this emblematic author Hawthorne's work is also the first to situate Rachilde in the broader social contexts and literary currents of her time and of our own

Medieval Romance and Material Culture Nicholas Perkins, 2015 Studies of how the physical manifests itself in medieval romance and medieval romances as objects themselves Medieval romance narratives glitter with the material objects that were valued and exchanged in late medieval society lovers rings and warriors swords holy relics and desirable or corrupted bodies Romance however is also a genre in which such objects make meaning on numerous levels and not always in predictable ways These new essays examine from diverse perspectives how romances respond to material culture but also show how romance as a genre helps to constitute and transmit that culture Focusing on romances circulating in Britain and Ireland between the twelfth and sixteenth centuries individual chapters address such questions as the relationship between objects and protagonists in romance narrative the materiality of male and female bodies the interaction between visual and verbal representations of romance poetic form and manuscript textuality and how a nineteenth century edition of medieval romances provoked artists to homage and satire
