critiqued in this case for overlooking the negative consequences of failed cooperative endeavours. The book highlights the importance of trust and compliance in the success of cooperative agreements as well as the adverse effects of their breakdown. The work contributes significantly to our understanding of international relations in the Middle East. It draws on an extensive examination of prior research while presenting novel theoretical insights. The detailed case study of Iran's nuclear aspirations before, during, and after the nuclear deal serves as a compelling application of the theoretical framework. Finally, the book provides an in-depth exploration of the intricate web of geopolitics, trust, and cooperation that has shaped the trajectory of Iran's nuclear ambitions. It offers not only theoretical contributions to the field of international relations but also valuable policy insights for managing this critical international issue.

Acting Alone Bradley F. Podliska, 2010-03-16. Acting Alone: A Scientific Study of American Hegemony and Unilateral Use of Force. Decision Making is a straightforward analysis of unilateral U.S. military actions which are dependent upon the power disparity between the U.S. and the rest of the world. In solving the puzzle as to why individual presidents have made the wrong decision to act alone, the author lays out a president's behavior during a crisis as a two-step decision process. Acting Alone reviews the well-studied first decision: deciding to use force based on international conflict literature and organized along traditional lines. The author then details the second decision: deciding to use unilateral force with an explanation of the criticisms of multilateralism and the reasons for unilateralism. To test a new theory of unilateral use of force decision making, Acting Alone devises a definition and coding rules for unilateral use of force, develops a sequential model of presidential use of force decision making, and constructs a new alternative measure of military power: a Composite Indicator of Military Revolutions (CIMR). It then uses three methods: a statistical test with a Heckman probit model, an experiment, and case studies to test U.S. crisis behavior since 1937. By applying these three methods, the author finds that presidents are realists and make expected utility calculations to act unilaterally or multilaterally after their decision to use force. The unilateral decision, in particular, positively correlates with a wide military gap with an opponent located in the Western hemisphere and a national security threat.

Rivalry and Alliance Politics in Cold War Latin America Christopher Darnton, 2014-06-30. The success or failure of foreign policy initiatives in Latin America is heavily influenced by bureaucratic and military background players. Rivalry and Alliance Politics in Cold War Latin America Christopher Darnton's comparative study of the nature of conflict between Latin American states during the Cold War provides a counterintuitive and shrewd explanation of why diplomacy does or doesn't work. Specifically, he develops a theory that shows how the parochial interests of state bureaucracies can overwhelm national leaders' foreign policy initiatives and complicate regional alliances. His thorough evaluation of several twentieth-century Latin American conflicts covers the gamut of diplomatic disputes from border clashes to economic provocations to regional power struggles. Darnton examines the domestic political and economic conditions that contribute either to rivalry, continued conflict, or rapprochement, diplomatic reconciliation while assessing the impact of U.S. foreign policy. Detailed case studies provide not only a robust test of the theory but also a fascinating tour of Latin American history and Cold War politics including a multilayered examination of Argentine Brazilian strategic competition and presidential summits over four decades three rivalries in Central America following Cuba's 1959 revolution and how the 1980s debt crisis entangled the diplomatic affairs of several Andean countries These questions about international rivalry and rapprochement are of particular interest to security studies and international relations scholars as they seek to understand what defuses regional conflicts creates stronger incentives for improving diplomatic ties between states and builds effective alliances The analysis also bears fruit for contemporary studies of counterterrorism in its critique of parallels between the Cold War and the Global War on Terror its examination of failed rapprochement efforts between Algeria and Morocco and its assessment of obstacles to U S coalition building efforts
