Huebner, Timothy S. Bynum, 2016-04-13 This volume of the series was designed to provide a comprehensive primer on the existing best practices and emerging developments in the study and design research on crime and criminology. The work as a whole includes chapters on the measurement of criminal typologies, the offenders, offending and victimization, criminal justice organizations and specialized measurement techniques. Each chapter is written by experts in the field and they provide an excellent survey of the literature in the relevant area. More importantly, each chapter provides a description of the various methodological and substantive challenges presented in conducting research on these issues and denotes possible solutions to these dilemmas. An emphasis was placed on research that has been conducted outside of the United States and was designed to give the reader a broader, more global understanding of the social context of research. The goal of this volume is to provide a definitive reference for professionals in the field, researchers and students. This volume in the Handbooks in Criminology and Criminal Justice series identifies the principal topical areas of research in this field and summarizes the various methodological and substantive challenges presented in conducting research on these issues. In each chapter, authors provide a summary of the prominent data collection efforts in the topical area, provide an overview of the current methodological work, discuss the challenges in the measurement of central concepts in the subject area and identify new horizons emerging in data collection and measurement. We encouraged authors to discuss work conducted in an international context and to incorporate discussion of qualitative methodologies when appropriate. Practitioner's Guide

Neuropsychology of Aggression Joel S. Milner, 2012-12-06. This book reviews putative neurological and neuropsychological factors in aggressive behavior. Discussions focus on explanatory models, brain sites and cognitive functions that appear to be associated with aggressive behavior. Attention is given to measurement and design problems that are frequently encountered in the study of aggression. Further, it is emphasized that any relationship between neuropsychological factors and aggressive behavior will be complex. Neuropsychological factors must be considered in the context of mediating and moderating, precipitating and buffering variables from other ecological levels, e.g., family support. Even if perpetrator neuro-psychological factors are found to be reliably associated with aggression, it will still be necessary to demonstrate the extent to which different neuro-psychological factors are marker or are causal variables in aggressive behavior. Finally, since there has been a major societal and professional interest in the study of aggression within the family, several chapters focus on the possible neurological, neuropsychological and physiological aspects of family violence. Chapter 1, entitled Biological Theories of Violence, written by Adrian Raine and Angela Scerbo, provides a theoretical context for understanding the role of biological factors in aggression This chapter begins with a discussion of conceptual issues and methodological problems that impede theory development and research in aggression Following this discussion the authors present theories that may lead to a better understanding of the ix x Preface neurological and cognitive components of aggression The presentation of each theory is followed by a discussion of theory related research
