Cognitive Linguistic Approaches to Teaching Vocabulary and Phraseology Frank Boers, Seth Lindstromberg, 2008-08-27 Mastering the vocabulary of a foreign language is one of the most daunting tasks that language learners face The immensity of the task is underscored by the realisation that it is not only single words but also numerous standardised phrases idioms collocations etc that need to be acquired There is thus a clear need for instructional methods that help learners tackle this task and yet few proposals for vocabulary instruction have so far gone beyond techniques for rote learning and familiar means of promoting noticing The reason for this is that vocabulary and phraseology have long been assumed arbitrary The volume offers a long overdue alternative by exploring and exploiting the presence of linguistic motivation or systematic non arbitrariness in the lexicon The first half of the volume reports ample empirical evidence of the pedagogical effectiveness of presenting vocabulary to learners as non arbitrary The data reported indicate that the proposed instructional methods can benefit when both the nature of the target lexis and the basic cognitive orientations of particular learners are taken into account The first half of the book mostly targets lexis that has already attracted a fair amount of attention from Cognitive Linguists in the past e.g. phrasal verbs and figurative idioms The second half broadens the scope considerably by revealing the non arbitrariness of diverse other lexical patterns including collocations and word partnerships generally This is achieved by recognising some long neglected dimensions of linguistic motivation etymological and phonological motivation in particular Concrete suggestions are made for putting the non arbitrary nature of words and phrases to good use in instructed language learning The volume is therefore of interest not only to applied linguists and researchers in Second Language Acquisition Foreign Language Teaching but also to second and foreign language teaching professionals      Teaching Reading in Today's Elementary Schools Paul Clay Burns,Betty D.
