Food Allergy Advocacy Danya Glabau,2022-05-10 A detailed exploration of parents fight for a safe environment for their kids interrogating how race class and gender shape health advocacy The success of food allergy activism in highlighting the dangers of foodborne allergens shows how illness communities can effectively advocate for the needs of their members In Food Allergy Advocacy Danya Glabau follows parents and activists as they fight for allergen free environments accurate labeling the fair application of disability law and access to life saving medications for food allergic children in the United States At the same time she shows how this activism also reproduces the culturally dominant politics of personhood and responsibility based on an idealized version of the American family centered around white middle class and heteronormative motherhood By holding up the threat of food allergens to the white nuclear family to galvanize political and scientific action Glabau shows the movement excludes many including Black women and disabled adults whose families and health have too often been marginalized from public health and social safety net programs Further its strategies are founded on the assumption that market based solutions will address issues of social exclusion and equal access to healthcare Sharing the personal experiences of a wide spectrum of people including parents support group leaders physicians entrepreneurs and scientists Food Allergy Advocacy raises important questions about who controls illness activism Using critical intersectional feminism to interrogate how race class and gender shape activist priorities and platforms it shows the way to new justice focused models of advocacy
