Reprint) Mary S. Marot, 2015-07-11 Excerpt from School Records an Experiment In March 1918 the Bureau of Educational Experiments began an experiment in school records The undertaking arose from a practical need felt by all experimental schools the need to know what subject matter equipment and methods bring promising results Another desire held in common with most school experiments was to accumulate material which should in time contribute towards a better knowledge of children s growth in school To these ends the Bureau felt it necessary to work directly on the technique of school recording At the outset of the experiment the old forms of school reports in common use were discarded as inadequate to convey real information concerning school procedure The question of form and method of keeping new records was left open the only requirement being that each record should supply educational data in a sufficiently organized form to be readily used by the Bureau and by the school or teacher co operating in the experiment The active participants in the experiment were the City and Country School formerly the Play School the Nursery School several experimental classes in public elementary schools and a Recorder The City and Country School children were from three to nine years old in groups of eight to fifteen children The Nursery School children were between one and a half and three years old in a group of eight children The public school children were of the First Fifth and Sixth Grades The illustrations in this report are nearly all from notes of these schools and most of the children were under ten years of age For the last two years to June 1921 the experiment was confined to the City and Country School and the Nursery School In both of these schools the recording was attempted by the teachers and by myself In the public school classes I undertook the classroom recording alone The teachers of the City and Country School had been working upon notes of their work for several years before the Bureau began its experiment They had kept notes of individual children and of the teachers methods but they were not well satisfied with their material They had followed the plan of making daily notes Most of the teachers in the school followed this plan until the last year of our experiment About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Nineteenth Yearbook of the National Society for the Study of Education Guy Montrose Whipple, 2017-12-24 Excerpt from Nineteenth Yearbook of the National Society for the Study of Education Part I New Materials of Instruction Prepared by the Society s Committee on New Materials of Instruction Teachers very seldom think of it as part of their duty to find and prepare for use in class work new materials for instruction They are for the most part mere distributors of the knowledge which they themselves were taught in school or of such knowledge as they can easily find in standard textbooks Indeed it is possible to find cases in which a teacher limits the work of pupils to a study of what is contained in a single text Even the order of presentation of topics and the method of presenting material sometimes follow strictly the suggestions of the textbook so that the teacher becomes a mere imitation About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Teachers' Monographs Anonymous,2015-11-03 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work As a reproduction of a historical artifact this work may contain missing or blurred pages poor pictures errant marks etc Scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant TEACHERS MONOGRAPHS Anonymous,2016-08-27 Elizabeth Norton Student Teaching Scrapbook, 1968 January 29-May 16 : Typescript and Printout Elizabeth Norton (Teacher),1968 Scrapbook containing Norton s professional log documenting her student teaching as required by her Education 483 class at Alabama State College in Montgomery between January and May 1968 Contains a 24 page typed diary and nine photographs of teachers and students 7 color and two black and white There are also about 15 items related to her course requirements or used in the classes including her introduction to the scrapbook a 3 page syllabus for her education class an 18 page Student Teaching Bulletin from the college a booklet entitled Selections from the NEA Journal on Student Teaching and two self evaluation forms for student teachers Items from Bellingrath Junior High School include mimeographed schedules a class role sheet and an English quiz The diary recorded her day to day experiences at the two schools teaching grammar getting to know the teachers and students observing classes and outlined her feelings about starting to teach and about transitioning to another school On April 8th and 9th Norton wrote entries regarding the death of Martin Luther King Jr She did not attend school on those days
