Neurobiology of the Human Mind and Behaviour	1.1. The Human Brain and Behaviour The human brain is a complex organ that controls all of our actions and thoughts. It is divided into two main halves, the left and right hemispheres, which are connected by the corpus callosum. The brain is made up of billions of neurons, which are the basic units of the nervous system. Neurons are specialized cells that can send and receive information from other neurons. The brain is also made up of other types of cells, such as glial cells, which support the neurons. The brain is a highly plastic organ, meaning it can change its structure and function in response to experience. This is known as neuroplasticity. The brain is also a highly energy-consuming organ, using about 20% of the body's energy. The brain is a complex organ that controls all of our actions and thoughts.
