Adolescent Behavior Research Advances Earl B. Darlow, 2007 Developmentally puberty is accompanied by major physical and emotional changes that alter a young person's relationships and patterns of interaction with others The transition into adolescence begins the move toward independence from parents and the need to establish one's own values personal and sexual identity and the skills and competencies needed to compete in adult society Independence requires young people to renegotiate family rules and degree of supervision by parents a process that can generate conflict and withdrawal from parents At the same time social networks expand and relationships with peers and adults in new social contexts equal or exceed in importance the relationships with parents The criteria for success and acceptance among peers and adults change Adapting to all of these changes in relationships social contexts status and performance criteria can generate great stress feelings of rejection and anger at perceived or real failure Young people may be attracted to violent behavior as a way of asserting their independence of the adult world and its rules as a way of gaining the attention and respect of peers as a way of compensating for limited personal competencies or as a response to restricted opportunities for success at school or in the community Good relationships with parents during childhood will help in a successful transition to adolescence but they do not guarantee it This book examines crucial issues in the field

Toddlers Together Cynthia Catlin, 1994. No description.

Linking Assessment and Early Intervention Stephen J. Bagnato, John T. Neisworth, Susan M. Munson, 1997. A natural progression from the authors' widely known work on assessment and programming in early intervention, LINK is a revolutionary process that hurdles traditional obstacles to selecting and using authentic assessment, intervention, evaluation procedures for young children. Pulling the best properties from well-known assessment and curriculum models, LINK identifies critical markers for judging quality and effectiveness, authenticity, collaboration, convergence, equity, sensitivity and congruence. The authors apply this unique six-standard index to more than 50 different curriculum embedded and curriculum compatible assessment and intervention systems, rating and analyzing each. In addition, they explain how early childhood professionals can perform their own quality reviews and then customize the system's of their choice to specific populations or programs. With this essential resource in hand, early intervention team members and administrators can ensure the individualized support opportunities every child needs for healthy development.
