Is it possible at present to identify a core cluster of theoretical ideas concepts and methods with which everyone working in the area of learning and cognition needs to be familiar Would it be possible to make explicit the relationships that we feel do or must exist among the various subspecialties ranging from conditioning through perceptual learning and memory to psycholinguistics and to present these in a sufficiently organized way to help specialists and non specialists alike in relating particular lines of research to the broader spectrum of activity These questions were posed to a substantial number of investigators who were most active in developing the ideas and doing the research in the early 1970s Originally published between 1975 and 1978 their response constitutes this 6 volume Handbook of Learning and Cognitive Processes The volumes survey the research and theory on learning and cognitive processes that were rapidly developing at the time The primary orientation was to concentrate on research and models aimed toward the development of general cognitive theory They were up to date with regard to theoretical and technical developments and sufficiently self contained to be readable by anyone with a reasonable scientific background regardless of their acquaintance with the technical jargon of particular specialties Previously out of print the Handbook is now available again as a set or as individual volumes Handbook of Learning and Cognitive Processes (Volume 3) William K. Estes, 2014-06-20 Originally published in 1976 Volume 3 of this Handbook deals primarily with conditions of acquisition retention and forgetting and the manner in which acquired information and motivation combine to determine performance The organization of this volume can be understood in terms of four principal categories The first category deals with general problems of methodology the second and third with basic concepts arising from research on human learning and performance and the fourth with applications Volume 1 presented an overview of the field and introduced principal theoretical and methodological issues that persistently recurred in the expanded treatment of specific research areas which comprise the later volumes The areas traditionally associated with conditioning learning theory and the basic psychology of human learning are treated in Volumes 2 and 3 The last three volumes will range over active lines of research having to do with human cognitive processes at the time Volume 4 attention memory storage and retrieval Volumes 5 and 6 information processing reading semantic memory and problem solving Everyday Literacy Stephanie R.
