Stellenbosch University Application 2016:

Space and planning in secondary cities Lochner Marais, Verna Nel, 2019-09-01 Much of the urban research focuses on the large metropolitan areas in South Africa. This book assesses spatial planning in the second tier cities of the country. Secondary cities are vital as they perform essential regional and in some cases global economic roles and help to distribute the population of a country more evenly across its surface. Apartheid planning left South African cities fragmented, segregated and with low densities. Post-apartheid policies aim to reverse these realities by emphasising integration, higher densities and upgrading. Achieving these aims has been challenging and often the historical patterns continue. The evidence shows that two opposing patterns prevail, namely increased densities and continued urban sprawl. This book presents ten case studies of spatial planning and spatial transformation in secondary cities of South Africa. The book frames these case studies against complexity theory and suggests that the post-apartheid response to apartheid planning represents a linear deviation from history. The ten case studies then reveal how difficult it is for local decision makers to find appropriate responses and how current responses often result in contradictory results. Often these cities are highly vulnerable and they find it difficult to plan in the context of uncertainty. The book also highlights how these cities find it difficult to stand on their own against the influence of interest groups, property developers, mining companies, traditional authorities, other spheres of government. The main reasons include weak municipal finance statements, the dependence on national and provincial government for capital expenditure, limited investment in infrastructure maintenance, the lack of planning capacity, the inability to implement plans and the unintended and sometimes contrary outcomes of post-apartheid planning policies. Universities as Political Institutions Leasa Weimer, Terhi Nokkala, 2020-04-06 Universities can be viewed and studied as political institutions, especially considering that they sit at the crossroads of social, cultural and economic pressures. The internal and external environment of higher education brings with it multiple and complex relationships as well as power struggles. Within these contested political spaces, there are phenomena to be studied. While the field of higher education draws from a multitude of disciplines, some scholars argue that only recently has scholarship focused on the political perspectives of higher education. To better understand the politics and policies of higher education, Universities as Political Institutions illuminates a variety of ways that researchers view and study universities as a political institution, from considering the national and international political pressures shaping higher education to the analysis of responses and political action from within the ivory tower. The 2017 annual CHER conference in Jyväskylä, Finland, brought together 213 scholars from 30 countries. This book includes a selection of papers and keynote presentations from this conference. The thematic approach of the book reflects the 2017 conference theme, Universities as Political Institutions: Higher Education Institutions in the Middle of Academic, Economic and Social Pressures. The theme focused on multiple and often complex relations and relationships internal and external to higher education institutions. In this context, political refers not only to definitions, uses and users of power but more broadly to a variety of relationships among different actors and agencies responsible for making executing or resisting decisions concerning higher education institutions      Academic Development and its Practitioners Gert Young,2022-03-03 The chapters in this collection are reflections of the intellectual emotional and day to day experiences of professional staff engaged in academic development They provide the reader with glimpses of how academic developers at one South African university are continuously shaping their identities through sense making processes how they creatively apply different theoretical approaches to both analysing and informing their work and what their views are of the practical and systemic challenges facing higher education As such this book expands on as well as challenges the dominant ways of thinking about academic development and academic developers in higher education      A Neoliberal Framework for Urban Housing Development in the Global South Sampa Chisumbe,Clinton Ohis Aigbavboa,Erastus Mwanaumo,Wellington Didibhuku Thwala,2024-03-22 A Neoliberal Framework for Urban Housing Development in the Global South highlights the factors which predict urban housing development from developing countries perspective providing a guide for countries in the sub Sahara
