

The background is a vibrant, abstract composition. It features a dark blue base with numerous bright blue and white light streaks and bokeh effects, suggesting a digital or high-tech environment. In the lower half, there are horizontal streaks of red and pink light, creating a sense of motion. ,1911 Atlas of Prejudice Yanko Tsvetkov,2013-08-11 The Atlas of Prejudice is a continuation of the highly successful Mapping Stereotypes project by visual artist Yanko Tsvetkov Started in January 2009 the project soon became a viral online sensation It was gradually expanded to contain more than 40 stereotype maps which the author describes as cartographic caricatures ridiculing the worst excesses of human bigotry and narrow mindedness The essays that accompany them narrate the story of the project and contemplate humanity s affair with prejudice since the dawn of civilization They offer an even deeper but equally hilarious perspective on our inherent tendency to randomly blame people simply because someone convinced us that they ate our breakfast According to this book the first domesticated animal was not the dog but the scapegoat The razor sharp irony of the author will guide you through the delusions of the ancient civilizations of Greece and China reveal the stupefying amalgam of superstition and paranoia of the Middle Ages and it will leave you begging for more with a grotesquely hilarious prediction about the future of Europe Satire and cartography rarely come in a single package but in the Atlas of Prejudice they successfully blend to produce a book that is shockingly funny and disturbingly thought provoking all at the same time

An Aesthesia of Networks Anna Munster,2013-05-17 The experience of networks as the immediate sensing of relations between humans and nonhuman technical elements in assemblages such as viral media and databases Today almost every aspect of life for which data exists can be rendered as a network Financial data social networks biological ecologies all are visualized in links and nodes lines connecting dots A network visualization of a corporate infrastructure could look remarkably similar to that of a terrorist organization In An Aesthesia of Networks Anna Munster argues that this uniformity has flattened our experience of networks as active and relational processes and assemblages She counters the network anaesthesia that results from this pervasive mimesis by reinserting the question of experience or aesthesia into networked culture and aesthetics Rather than asking how humans experience computers and networks Munster asks how networks experience what operations they perform and undergo to change and produce new forms of experience Drawing on William James s radical empiricism she asserts that networked experience is assembled first and foremost through relations which make up its most immediately sensed and perceived aspect Munster critically considers a range of contemporary artistic and cultural practices that engage with network technologies and techniques including databases and data mining the domination of search in online activity and the proliferation of viral media through YouTube These practices from artists who undermine data to musicians and VJs who use intranetworked audio and video software environments are concerned with the relationality at the core of today s network experience

Sharing Democracy Michael L. Ferguson,2012-10-03 Democratic theorists frequently assume that the people must have something in common or else democracy will fail This produces an ironically anti democratic tendency to emphasize the passive possession of commonality Sharing Democracy counters this tendency with a radical vision of democracy grounded instead in the active exercise of political freedom
