GRUESOME BATTLE OF THE SOMME RIVER

As you may know, there has been a battle in Sommes for a month now. The battle in northern France is taking place to alleviate pressure on the French Army fighting at Verdun and to weaken the German Army. They sent British, Newfoundlander, Australian, New Zealander, South African, and Canadian soldiers to fight against the Germans. I was sent to report on conditions of the battle in its first month.

I witnessed such appalling conditions; pure manslaughter, disease and illness, dreadful living environments, and much more. The first day of the battle was the worst of all. The British had over 60,000 casualties on the first day. Their original plan was to fire lodes of artillery towards the opposing side and then march to take over their trenches.

I watched them run in straight lines towards machine guns firing at them from all sides. I saw so many men shot and killed, blood splattering everywhere, lifeless bodies being swallowed by mud as bullets hit them. The Newfoundland Regiment ceases to exist due to the 90% of casualties. Seeing so many men shot down so quickly was terrifying.

Life in the trenches wasn't exceptional either. I was only there for a month but I felt as if I was in a pigsty. There was such a foul smell in just the first week alone, it was unbearable. Rats were very common as they would run around the mud floors of the trenches. I have seen so many soldiers not only die from battle wounds but disease and illness as well. Trench foot was extremely common in the trenches. It was horrible to see so many soldiers suffer in such conditions.

The weather did not help either. Whenever it would rain, the trenches would flood which increased rates of disease. The soldiers were exceptionally inspiring. They held on for as long as possible, knowing they might not see tomorrow. They tried to keep morale up inside the trenches. It was miserable to see them cry while writing back to their families and hear them tell stories about their children.

Ultimately, they are husbands, fathers, and sons. When will this gruesome battle end? How many more to die? How many more family members will have to bury their loved ones? sad to say but the only we can do is wait and hope that they come home.

Reporting the First World War in the Liminal Zone Sara Prieto,2018-02-28 This book deals with an aspect of the Great War that has been largely overlooked the war reportage written based on British and American authors experiences at the Western Front It focuses on how the liminal experience of the First World War was portrayed in a series of works of literary journalism at different stages of the conflict from the summer of 1914 to the Armistice in November 1918 Sara Prieto explores a number of representative texts written by a series of civilian eyewitness who have been passed over in earlier studies of literature and journalism in the Great War The texts under discussion are situated in the liminal zone as they were written in the middle of a transitional period half way between two radically different literary styles the romantic and idealising ante bellum tradition and the cynical and disillusioned modernist school of writing They are also the product of the various stages of a physical and moral journey which took several authors into the fantastic albeit nightmarish world of the Western Front where their understanding of reality was transformed beyond anything they could have anticipated

Reporting from the Front Brian Best,2014-11-30 When the war was declared in August 1914 one of the first acts to be implemented by the politicians and military was a strict censorship on the newspapers As the poacher turned gamekeeper Winston Churchill said The war is going to be fought in a fog and the best place for correspondence about the war is London The military sought to have one of their officers dubbed Eyewitness to be the official spokesman to enable them to control what the newspapers could print In the early stages of the war there were many reporters on the Continent who were evading military arrest and sending back reports about the reality of the situation Several volunteered with the various ambulance services just to disguise their real purpose but all were eventually banished Having finally cleared all reporters from fighting area the military was persuaded to allow a small number of accredited war reporters to be chaperoned around the battle fronts They were closely watched and their reports thoroughly scrutinised until they eventually became almost a part of the Headquarters hierarchy Later diaries and letters revealed how many of them really felt and they had to bear the post war shame of not writing the truth The Western Front was not the only front in this world war Reporters found censorship less rigidly applied on the Eastern Front Palestine and Italy One correspondent whose reports famously brought about the sacking of the campaign commander and the ending of the fruitless and bloody Gallipoli Expedition bravely broke ranks and was finished as a war reporter War reporting was not confined to print The emergence of photographers and cinematographers on the battlefield has left us with an extraordinary record Unlike their writing brothers the photographers could get close to the action and shoot what they liked The resultant film was of course censored but thankfully nothing was discarded and museum archives are full of their stunning work Having been the pre war stars of their newspapers the war reporters experienced a post war wave of anger and cynicism which took years to overcome The Book of History: The events of 1916 ... 1917 and summary, 1920 A profusely illustrated summary of world history from an Euro centric view but in great detail up to the end of World War II A Battle Report: Alam Halfa Basil Henry Liddell Hart, Fritz Bayerlein, 1956 The report of a combat action as seen by two opposing commanders To be of any value the report had to shed some light on the problems of today fluid actions of mobile forces operating over widely separated areas the logistic problems incumbent in such action the effect of terrain on the conduct of the operation and most important the employment of air elements operating in conjunction with the ground forces Discrepancies in the order of battle will be noticed in comparing one account with the other These presumably are the results of erroneous intelligence information on both sides Although perhaps confusing these errors will give the reader a picture of the amount of information each side had available Further it shows how the fog of battle obscures the field commander's perception of his opponent and firmly substantiates the axiom that war is truly an art Abstract Report United States.
