has involved the reading of many hundreds of stories in the English magazines of an entire year I should find myself asking the simple question What is a short story I do not suppose that a hundred years ago such a question could have occurred to any one Then all that a story was and could be was implied in the simple phrase Tell me a story We all know what that means How many stories published today would stand this simple if final test of being told by word of mouth I doubt whether fifty per cent would Surely the universality of the printing press and the linotype machine have done something to alter the character of literature just as the train and the telephone have done not a little to abolish polite correspondence Most stories of today are to be read not told Hence great importance must be attached to the manner of writing in some instances the whole effect of a modern tale is dependent on the manner of presentation Henry James is possibly an extreme example
