Fama Thelma S. Fenster, Daniel Lord Smail, 2003 In medieval Europe the word fama denoted both talk what was commonly said about a person or event and an individual's ensuing reputation one's fama Although talk by others was no doubt often feared it was also valued and even cultivated as a vehicle for shaping one's status People had to think about how to manage their fama which played an essential role in the medieval culture of appearances At the same time however institutions such as law courts and the church alarmed by the power of talk sought increasingly to regulate it Christian moral discourse literary and visual representation juristic manuals and court records reflected concern about talk This book's authors consider how talk was created and entered into memory They address such topics as fama's relation to secular law and the preoccupations of the church its impact on women's lives and its capacity to shape the concept of literary authorship

Women in Christianity in the Medieval Age Laura Kalas, Roberta Magnani, 2024-12-10 This volume offers a comprehensive introduction to and investigation of the multivocality of women's experience in the Middle Ages In medieval Europe women saw their role in the Christian Church and society progressively confined to conflicting models of femininity epitomised by the dichotomy of Eve Mary Classical views of gender predicated on misogynistic dichotomies which confined women to matter and the corruption of the flesh were consolidated in powerful male dominated clerical institutions and widely disseminated Towards the end of the Middle Ages however women's corporeality and somatic spirituality contributed to and influenced burgeoning modes of piety centred around the cult of the Virgin Mary and the veneration of the suffering body of Christ on the Cross This shift in devotional practices afforded women as bodily beings the space for an increased level of self expression self realisation and authority Ranging from philosophical and theological enquiry to education and art as well as medical sciences and popular beliefs the essays in this collection account for the complexities and richness of the conceptualisations and lived experiences of medieval Christian women The book will be especially relevant to students and scholars of religion and history with an interest in medieval studies and gender Whilst expounding the key strands of thinking in the field it engages with and contributes to some of the latest scholarly research

The Power of a Woman's Voice in Medieval and Early Modern Literatures Albrecht Classen, 2012-02-13 The study takes the received view among scholars that women in the Middle Ages were faced with sustained misogyny and that their voices were seldom heard in public and subjects it to a critical analysis The ten chapters deal with various aspects of the question and the voices of a variety of authors both female and male are heard The study opens with an enquiry into violence against women including in texts by male writers Hartmann von Aue Gottfried von Stra burg Wolfram von Eschenbach which indeed describe instances of violence but adopt an extremely critical stance towards them It then proceeds to show how women were able to develop an independent identity in various genres and could present themselves as authorities in the public eye Mystic texts by Hildegard of Bingen Marie de France and Margery Kempe the medieval conduct poem known as Die Winsbeckin the Devout Books of Sisters composed in convents in South West Germany but also quasi historical documents such as the memoirs of Helene Kottaner or Anna Weckerin s cookery book demonstrate that far more women were in the public gaze than had hitherto been assumed and that they possessed the self confidence to establish their positions with their intellectual and their literary achievements
