Promise of Global Advocacy Marcel Hanegraaff,Arlo Poletti,2022-06-27 The Broken Promise of Global Advocacy addresses two key normative debates associated with the rise of transnational advocacy whether global interest communities are biased in favor of wealthier countries and whether the growth of global advocacy implies the emergence of a global civil society truly representative of global constituencies The authors address these important debates using original data drawn from a large scale project which maps all organized interests participating in two international venues the World Trade Organizations Ministerial Conferences 1995 2017 and the United Nations Climate Summits 1997 2017 They leverage this unique dataset to carry out a systematic empirical assessment of contending views on the factors driving the rise of transnational advocacy In doing so the book demonstrates that cross national differences in global interest representation largely mirror states economic power and that global interest communities are likely to remain dominated by organizations representing national rather than global interests This book will be of great interest to students and scholars working in
