which is the instrumentalisation of what writers do Beginning with the question of whether writing can or ought to be taught it looks in turn at the justifications for BA MA and PhD courses and concludes with the divided role of the writer who teaches It argues in favour of Creative Writing as a form of hands on literary education at undergraduate level and a form of literary apprenticeship at graduate level especially in widening access to new voices It argues against those forms of Creative Writing that lose sight of literary values as seen in the proliferation of curricular couplings with non literary subjects or the increasing emphasis on developing skills for future employment Against Creative Writing written by a writer is addressed to other writers inside or outside the academy at undergraduate or graduate level whether creative or critical A Creative Writing Pedagogies for the Twenty-First Century Alexandria Peary, Tom C Hunley, 2015-06-25 The creative writing workshop beloved by some, dreaded by others, and ubiquitous in writing programs across the nation. For decades the workshop has been entrenched as the primary pedagogy of creative writing. While the field of creative writing studies has sometimes myopically focused on this single method, the related discipline of composition studies has made use of numerous pedagogical models. In Creative Writing Pedagogies for the Twenty-First Century, editors Alexandria Peary and Tom C Hunley gather experts from both creative writing and composition studies to offer innovative alternatives to the traditional creative writing workshop. Drawing primarily from the field of composition studies, a discipline rich with a wide range of established pedagogies, the contributors in this volume build on previous models to present fresh and inventive methods for the teaching of creative writing. Each chapter offers both a theoretical and a historical background for its respective pedagogical ideas, as well as practical applications for use in the classroom. This myriad of methods can be used either as a supplement to the customary workshop model or as stand-alone roadmaps to engage and reinvigorate the creative process for both students and teachers alike. A fresh and inspiring collection of teaching methods, Creative Writing Pedagogies for the Twenty-First Century combines both conventional and cutting-edge techniques to expand the pedagogical possibilities in creative writing studies.
