Kunuar Luísa Coelho, 2018-02-21 Kunuar is a volume of fifty two poems framed by the feminist and postcolonial sensibilities of the Portuguese author Luísa Coelho In a painful but playful manner she describes her re-discovery in a post colonial era of Luanda the capital of Angola the country of her birth Memory crafts a vivid dialogue between today and yesterday that sheds light on the remains of colonial Luanda's history Kunuar the title of both the book and the concluding poem refers to the small spots on the street where secondhand clothes are sold to the large penniless population of Luanda The image of a poor mother distressed because she cannot afford even castoff clothes becomes an icon of the poverty of a city and a country but her pain is assuaged by the urine of her baby running down her back and warming her This powerful image points to many others in the collection in which the recurrent theme of love of mother and child is one of the few sources of hope in the midst of misery and grinding poverty in a post colonial country that is the second producer of diamonds and petroleum in sub Saharan Africa Like this moving and beautiful image Coelho s poetic writing offers in a very subtle way an enchanting testimony about the past as well as the current oppressive conditions of Luanda after four centuries of Portuguese colonial order Angola s independence in 1975 followed by its intense civil war from 1975 to 2002

Found in Translation Frank Wynne,2018-09-06 Without translation we would be living in provinces bordering on silence George Steiner It is impossible to overstate the influence world literatures have had in defining each other No culture exists in isolation all writers are part of the intertwining braid of literature Found In Translation brings together one hundred glittering diamonds of world literature celebrating not only the original texts themselves but also the art of translation From Azerbaijan to Uzbekistan by way of China and Bengal Suriname and Slovenia some of the greatest voices of world literature come together in a thunderous chorus If the authors include Nobel Prize winners some of the translators are equally famous here Saul Bellow translates Isaac Bashevis Singer D H Lawrence and Edith Wharton translate classic Italian short stories and Victoria Hislop has taken her first venture into translation with the only short story written by Constantine P Cavafy This exciting original and brilliantly varied collection of stories takes the reader literally on a journey exploring the best short stories the globe has to offer

Diasporic Identities within Afro-Hispanic and African Contexts Yaw Agawu-Kakraba,Komla F. Aggor,2015-10-05 Diasporic Identities within Afro Hispanic and African Contexts explores the complexities underlying the identity formation of peoples of African ancestry in the Spanish speaking world and of expatriate immigrants who inhabit colonized territories in Africa Although current diaspora studies provide provocative perspectives on migration that have various cultural national political and economic implications any engagement of the subject readily runs into theoretical and practical challenges At stake here is the question of finding an ideal conceptualization of diaspora Should the term be limited to migration that is purely voluntary or to a traumatic exile What about generational differences that invariably impact the imagining of diaspora How does diaspora relate to creolization hybridity and transculturation This volume does not argue for what constitutes a proper diaspora but rather re contextualizes the concept of diaspora from the point of view of identity formation on the basis of voluntary and non voluntary migration The essays gathered together here engage with the unified topic of identity but radiate a stimulating variety in geographic coverage examining countries such as Cuba Nicaragua Morocco Angola and Spain and in thematic approach from religion to a poetics of self affirmation to issues of political conflict subalternity and migration

Translation as Advocacy Various,2024-04-25 What does it mean to advocate in translation for translation through translation What does

advocacy look like for those who do the translating or for those whose work is translated To what extent is translation itself a form of advocacy These what questions are the driving force behind this collection Translation as Advocacy highlights the innovative ways in which translator academics in seven different fields discuss their practice in relation to their understanding of advocacy The book aims to encourage people to think about translators as active agents bringing new work into the receiving culture advocating for the writers they translate for ideas for practices As such the book asserts that the act of translation is a mode of cultural production and a political intervention through which the translator as advocate claims a significant position in intercultural dialogue Featuring seven interrelated chapters the book covers themes of judgement spaces for translation classroom practice collaboration intercultural position textuality and voice Each chapter explores the specific demands of different types of translation work the specific role of each stage of the process and what advocacy means at each of these stages for example choosing what is translated mediating between author and receiving culture pitching to publishers social interactions framing the translation for different audiences teaching creating new canons gatekeepers and prizes dissemination marketing and reception This book repositions the role of the translator academic as an activist who uses their knowledge and understanding to bring agency to the complex processes of understanding across time and space Moving critically through the different stages that the translator academic occupies using the spaces for research performance and classroom teaching as springboards for active engagement with the key preoccupations of our times this book will highlight translation as advocacy for students educators audiences for translation and the translation industry Like all the volumes in the Language Acts and Worldmaking series the overall aim is two fold to challenge widely held views about language learning as a neutral instrument of globalisation and to innovate and transform language research teaching and learning together with Modern Languages as an academic discipline by foregrounding its unique form of cognition and critical engagement Specific aims are to propose new ways of bridging the gaps between those who teach and research languages and those who learn and use them in everyday contexts from the professional to the personal put research into the hands of wider audiences share a philosophy policy and practice of language teaching and learning which turns research into action provide the research experience and data to enable informed debates on current issues and attitudes in language learning teaching and research share knowledge across and within all levels and experiences of language learning and teaching showcase exciting new work that derives from different types of community activity and is of practical relevance to its audiences disseminate new research in languages that engages with diverse communities of language practitioners

Turning the Page Fiona M. Collins, Jeremy Ridgman, 2006 Since the nineteenth century children's literature has been adapted for both the stage and the screen As the twentieth century progressed children's books provided the material for an increasing range of new media from radio to computer games from television to cinema blockbuster Although such adaptations are now recognised as a significant part of the culture of childhood and popular culture in general little has been written about the range of products and experiences that they generate This book brings together writers whose work offers contrasting perspectives on the process of adaptation and the varying transformations social historical and ideological that take place when a text moves from the page to another medium Linking all these contributions is an interest in the changing definition of children's literature and its target audience within an increasingly media rich society
