How Groups Matter Gideon Calder, Magali Bessone, Federico Zuolo, 2014-04-11 When groups feature in political philosophy it is usually in one of three contexts the redressing of past or current injustices suffered by ethnic or cultural minorities the nature and scope of group rights and questions around how institutions are supposed to treat a certain specific identity cultural ethnic group What is missing from these debates is a comprehensive analysis of groups as both agents and objects of social policies While this has been subject to much scrutiny by sociologists and social psychologists it has received less attention from a normative and philosophical point of view This volume asks what problems are posed to political philosophy by a collection of individuals who act or are treated in a collective way Focusing not only on ways in which institutions should treat groups but also on the normative implications of considering groups as possible social agents when acting either in vertical relations with the state or in horizontal relations with other groups or individuals this book explores these issues from both theoretical and practical perspectives Contributors address both the nature of political and social philosophy itself and the ways in which specific issues affirmative action race religion and places of worship the rights of states have become political and social priorities

The Privacy Advocates Colin J. Bennett, 2010-08-13 An analysis of the people and groups who have emerged to challenge the increasingly intrusive ways personal information is captured processed and disseminated Today personal information is captured processed and disseminated in a bewildering variety of ways and through increasingly sophisticated miniaturized and distributed technologies identity cards biometrics video surveillance the use of cookies and spyware by Web sites data mining and profiling and many others In The Privacy Advocates Colin Bennett analyzes the people and groups around the world who have risen to challenge the most intrusive surveillance practices by both government and corporations Bennett describes a network of self identified privacy advocates who have emerged from civil society without official sanction and with few resources but surprisingly influential A number of high profile conflicts in recent years have brought this international advocacy movement more sharply into focus Bennett is the first to examine privacy and surveillance not from a legal political or technical perspective but from the viewpoint of these independent activists who have found creative ways to affect policy and practice Drawing on extensive interviews with key informants in the movement he examines how they frame the issue and how they organize who they are and what strategies they use He also presents a series of case studies that illustrate how effective their efforts have been including conflicts over key escrow encryption which allows the government to read encrypted messages online advertising through third party cookies that track users across different Web sites and online authentication mechanisms such as the short lived Microsoft Passport Finally Bennett considers how the loose coalitions of the privacy network could develop into a more cohesive international social movement The "Strong Poet" ,2020-03-23

The Strong Poet Essays in Honor of Lous Heshusius is an edited volume focused on the research scholarship and leadership of one of the earliest proponents of radical change in the field of special education This volume is part of the series Critical Leaders and the Foundation of Disability Studies in Education a collective history of the ecology of ideas that gave way to the emergence of the field of Disability Studies in Education DSE The series formalizes the value of attending to a history distinguished by Steve Taylor 2005 as one that existed before it was named DSE In this volume the contributors borrow from the venerable life work of Lous Heshusius to center her original claims early research and the enduring challenge she posed to special education against examples from their own practice and personal histories Each chapter recovers aspects of the genius of Heshusius that ultimately disrupted status quo thinking about disability Specifically her attention to recognizing the lives and desires of those that society too often relegates to categories and contexts devoid of self direction and authentic agency In brief we find in Heshusius a researcher who sought to privilege the voice of individuals with disability She was among those who drew from and elaborated upon the methods and tools of qualitative research Contributors are Julie Allan Alicia A Broderick Danielle M Cowley Deborah J Gallagher Emily A Nusbaum and Linda Ware The Process of Divorce Kenneth Kressel,1997-06-01 To learn more about Rowman Littlefield titles please visit us at www.rowmanlittlefield.com

Special Advocates in the Adversarial System John Jackson,2019-07-24 The last twenty years have seen an unprecedented rise in the use of secret courts or closed material proceedings largely brought about in response to the need to protect intelligence sources in the fight against terrorism This has called into question the commitment of legal systems to long cherished principles of adversarial justice and due process Foremost among the measures designed to minimise the prejudice caused to parties who have been excluded from such proceedings has been the use of special advocates who are given access to sensitive national security material and can make representations to the court on behalf of excluded parties Special advocates are now deployed across a range of administrative civil and criminal proceedings in many common law jurisdictions including the UK Canada New Zealand Hong Kong and Australia This book analyses the professional services special advocates offer across a range of different types of closed proceedings Drawing on extensive interviews with special advocates and with lawyers and judges who have worked with them the book examines the manner in which special advocates are appointed and supported how their position differs from that of ordinary counsel within the adversarial system and the challenges they face in the work that they do Comparisons are made between different special advocate systems and with other models of security cleared counsel including that used in the United States to consider what changes might be made to strengthen their adversarial role in closed proceedings In making an assessment of the future of special advocacy the book argues that there is a need to reconceptualise the unique role that special advocates play in the administration of justice

How Civic Action Works Paul Lichterman, 2020-12-15 The ways that social advocates organize to fight unaffordable housing and homelessness in Los Angeles illuminated by a new conceptual framework for studying collective action How Civic Action Works renews the tradition of inquiry into collective social problem solving Paul Lichterman follows grassroots activists nonprofit organization staff and community service volunteers in three coalitions and twelve organizations in Los Angeles as they campaign for affordable housing develop new housing or address homelessness Lichterman shows that to understand how social advocates build their campaigns craft claims and choose goals we need to move beyond well established thinking about what is strategic Lichterman presents a pragmatist inspired sociological framework that illuminates core tasks of social problem solving both contentious and noncontentious by grassroots and professional advocates alike He reveals that advocates distinct styles of collective action produce different understandings of what is strategic and generate different dilemmas for advocates because each style accommodates varying social and institutional pressures We see too how patterns of interaction create a cultural filter that welcomes some claims about housing problems while subordinating or delegitimizing others These cultural patterns help solve conceptual and practical puzzles such as why coalitions fragment when members agree on many things and what makes advocacy campaigns separate housing from homelessness or affordability from environmental sustainability Lichterman concludes by turning this action centered framework toward improving dialogue between social advocates and researchers Using extensive ethnography enriched by archival evidence How Civic Action Works explains how advocates meet the relational and rhetorical challenges of collective action

The Ethic of Advocacy Charles M. Masner, 2008-02 School psychologists have an ethical obligation to be advocates for students However the ethical principles of the National Association of School Psychologists NASP do not define what it means for school psychologists to be advocates for students except through the inferences that may be drawn from what school psychologists must be and do in order to comply with the NASP ethical principles This dissertation proposed a definition of advocacy which was then presented to a focus group of school psychology experts to an expert panel and then researched through a census survey of the Colorado Society of School Psychologists CSSP preceded by cognitive interviews and a small pilot study This dissertation explored the perceptions of CSSP members regarding their ethical obligation to be advocates for students including students entitled to a free appropriate public education FAPE under the Individuals With Disabilities Education Act IDEA Survey respondents were queried to determine their responses to the researcher s proposed definition of advocacy how prepared they believed they were to be advocates for students including students with disabilities the circumstances within which the need for advocacy was presented the capabilities necessary to be advocates and the barriers and enablers of advocacy There were strong majorities of agreement with the researcher s proposed definition of advocacy with the qualification that some concerns were expressed over the meanings of persuasive and ethical character There were strong majorities of agreement that school psychologists needed more education in advocacy in order to be better prepared as advocates There were strong majorities of agreement that school psychologists should advocate for students but survey participants also found advocating for students to be more problematic when the circumstances of this advocacy brought students into potential conflict with school district financial concerns and with job security for the school psychologist Survey participants generally thought that good collaborative skills were necessary capabilities for effective advocacy by school psychologists but they were divided over whether the capability to be adversarial with school staff and parents was necessary for effective advocacy Responses from survey participants also indicated that conflicts between multiple clients of the school psychologist may be potential barriers to effective advocacy for students and hence better resolution of such conflicts might enable better advocacy for students
