Narrating the Soviet Era in Russian School History Textbooks Olga Konkka, 2025-09-03 This study focuses on how Russian history textbooks published between 1992 and 2021 dealt with the topic of the Soviet period 1917-1991 Representations of this part of Russia's past in school manuals have provoked vivid debates and bolstered government intervention in the field while a gradual shift towards a less critical narrative of the USSR in more recent textbooks is often presented as directed by Vladimir Putin This study combines research into these texts and inquiry into those who write publish approve or criticize them Bringing together these perspectives provides a more complex view of school textbooks as final products of both top-down and bottom-up processes This volume is aimed at postgraduates researchers and academics specializing in Soviet history contemporary Russian politics and society and history education and textbooks

The Historian's Contribution to Anglo-American Misunderstanding Ray Allen Billington, 2016-04-14 This book examines text books used in English and American schools and determines the way in which national bias has been instilled into school children by the use of history books This study reveals that the deliberate distortion common a generation ago has disappeared but has been displaced by a more subtle form of bias that is more dangerous because it is less easily recognised It deals in particular with the treatment of the American War of Independence the War of 1812 and World War I The report contains positive suggestions to authors and publishers designed to eliminate all bias and to help them achieve historical objectivity

Subject Offerings and Enrollments in Public Secondary Schools United States. Office of Education, Grace Stevens Wright, 1965

Routledge Library Editions: Historiography Various, 2021-06-23 The greatest problem in historical scholarship theoretically and practically is the relation between historians and their subject matter The past is gone and historians can only study its remnants On what basis do scholars select certain facts from the mass of data left from the past How do they explain the interrelationship of the facts they select What criteria do they use to evaluate their subject The 35 volumes in this set originally published between 1926 and 1990 discuss and answer these essential questions faced by historians The development of historical understanding during the 18th and 19th centuries was one of the most striking features of Western culture Both historiography and historical thinking advanced as never before The historical movement of the 19th century was perhaps second only to the scientific revolution of the seventeenth century in transforming Western thought One consequence was extensive organisation and professionalization of research which the volumes in this set reflect
