Air Bleeding from Brake Line

BEH117K341100007

Air trapped in the brake fluid circuit acts like a cushion to absorb a large proportion of the pressure developed by the master cylinder and thus interferes with the full braking performance of the brake caliper. The presence of air is indicated by "sponginess" of the brake lever and also by lack of braking force. Considering the danger to which such trapped air exposes the machine and rider, it is essential that after remounting the brake and restoring the brake system to the normal condition, the brake fluid circuit be purged of air in the following manner:

NOTICE

- Spilled brake fluid can damage painted surfaces and plastic parts. Be careful not to spill any fluid when filling the brake fluid reservoir. Wipe spilled fluid up and wash stained parts immediately.
- It is essential to purge air from the fluid circuit before inspecting the function of the brake fluid pressure-decreasing mode. Without air bleeding, trapped air in the circuit will enter the HU.

Front Brake

- 1) Place the motorcycle on a level surface and adjust the horizontal upper face of reservoir tank.
- 2) Remove the reservoir cap plate (1).
- 3) Remove the reservoir cap (2) and diaphragm.
