Temples and Sanctuaries from the Early Iron Age Levant William E. Mierse, 2012-10-15 The vision for this impressive work on temple architecture in the Levant grew out of the author's work on Roman temple designs on the Iberian Peninsula and continual references to Semitic influences on the designs of sanctuaries both on the Peninsula and in North Africa It was assumed that Phoenician colonization had brought with it the full flowering of Levantine architectural forms As Mierse began to search for relevant material on the ancient Levant however he discovered that no overall synthesis had ever been written and it was virtually impossible to recognize and isolate Semitic elements in architectural forms This book addresses this need The analysis presented here is comparative and follows the methodology most commonly employed by architectural historians throughout the twentieth century It is a formalist approach and permits the isolation of lines of continuity and the detection of discontinuity While Mierse relies heavily on this traditional method he also introduces some approaches from the postprocessual school of archaeology in its attempts to discern an appropriate way for cult to be investigated by archaeology The sanctuaries that this book presents were erected between the end of the Late Bronze Age conventionally assigned the date of 1200 B C E and the annexation of the Levantine region into the Assyrian Empire when Mesopotamia again became highly influential in the region The topic concerns temples that were produced during the period when the Levant was its own entity and politically independent of Egypt Mesopotamia or Anatolia During this period the designs chosen for inclusion in this book must reflect local choices rather than resulting from imposed outside concepts The architecture that emerged in the wake of the downfall of the Late Bronze Age and the subsequent reemergence of social cohesiveness manifested significant changes in form and function The five centuries under review reveal exciting developments in sacred architecture and show that although the architects of the first millennium B C E maintained important lines of continuity with the developments of the previous two millennia they were also capable of creating novel forms to meet new needs Included in this fascinating volume are 90 pages of photos drawings floor plans and maps

Studies in Greek Scenery, Legend and History James George Frazer, 2017-11-20 It may be reckoned a peculiar piece of good fortune that among the wreckage of classical literature the Description of Greece by Pausanias should have come down to us entire In this work we possess a plain unvarnished account by an eye witness of the state of Greece in the second century of our era Of no other part of the ancient world has a description at once so minute and so trustworthy survived and if we had been free to single out one country in one age of which we should wish a record to be preserved our choice might well have fallen on Greece in the age of the Antonines No other people has exerted so deep and abiding an influence on the course of modern civilisation as the Greeks and never could all the monuments of their chequered but glorious history have been studied so fully as in the second century of our era The great age of the nation indeed had long been over but in the sunshine of peace and imperial favour Greek art and literature had blossomed again New temples had sprung up new images had been carved new theatres and baths and aqueducts ministered to the amusement and luxury of the people Among the new writers whose works the world will not willingly let die it is enough to mention the great names of Plutarch and Lucian It was in this mellow autumn perhaps rather the Indian summer of the ancient world when the last gleanings of the Greek genius were being gathered in that Pausanias a contemporary of Hadrian of the Antonines and of Lucian wrote his description of Greece He came in time but just in time He was able to describe the stately buildings with which in his own lifetime Hadrian had embellished Greece and the hardly less splendid edifices which even while he wrote another munificent patron of art Herodes Atticus was rearing at some of the great centres of Greek life and religion Yet under all this brave show the decline had set in About a century earlier the emperor Nero in the speech in which he announced at Corinth the liberation of Greece lamented that it had not been given him to confer the boon in other and happier days when there would have been more people to profit by it Some years after this imperial utterance Plutarch declared that the world in general and Greece especially was depopulated by the civil brawls and wars the whole country he said could now hardly put three thousand infantry in the field the number that formerly Megara alone had sent to face the Persians at Plataea and in the daytime a solitary shepherd feeding his flock was the only human being to be met with on what had been the site of one of the most renowned oracles in Boeotia Dio Chrysostom tells us that in his time the greater part of the city of Thebes lay deserted and that only a single statue stood erect among the ruins of the ancient market place The same picturesque writer has sketched for us a provincial town of Euboea where most of the space within the walls was in pasture or rig and furrow where the gymnasium was a fruitful field in which the images of Hercules and the rest rose here and there above the waving corn and where sheep grazed peacefully about the public offices in the grass grown market place In one of his Dialogues of the Dead Lucian represents the soul of a rich man bitterly reproaching himself for his rashness in having dared to cross Cithaeron with only a couple of men servants for he had been set upon and murdered by robbers on the highway at the point where the grey ruins of Eleutherae still look down on the pass in the time of Lucian the district laid waste he tells us by the old wars seems to have been even more lonely and deserted than it is now Of this state of things Pausanias himself is our best witness To be continue in this ebook

Sacred Dan Jason S. Bray,2006-06-05 An introduction reviews previous scholarship and concludes that the cultic aspects of Judges 17-18 have not been examined in any depth It then goes on to deal with the historical and redactional issues which previous scholars have found interesting The issues of provenance and dating are then examined with the conclusion that the text was written down in the immediate aftermath of the Assyrian conquest of Dan in an attempt to preserve its sacred traditions The text therefore reflects the self-understanding of the priests of Dan in the period immediately prior to its fall The text of Judges 17-18 is then subjected to a rhetorical critical examination followed by a more traditional form critical study The next section is a comparison of similar cultic foundation stories from other cultures Three major chapters examine the three major cultic issues raised by the text itself images priests and divination Each chapter draws on evidence from the Hebrew Bible and its environment in an attempt to clarify the nature of the cult of Dan Broadly each chapter concludes that although there were some features peculiar to the cult reflected by Dan in general the Danite cult was not greatly different from that of its neighbours A final chapter deals with what the text says about the tribe of Levi with the conclusion that according to Judges 17-18 there was once a secular tribe of Levi The conclusion draws a brief picture of cultic life in Dan in its final years

Waters of Creation: A Biblical Theological Study of Baptism Douglas Van Dorn,2012-08-01 This is the one book on baptism that you must read It was seven years in the making The author believes that until a new approach is taken separations over the meaning mode and recipients of baptism will never be bridged This new approach traces the roots of baptism deep into the OT Scriptures When understood properly we discover that baptism is always the sign that God has used to initiate his people into a new creation Baptism in the NT is not new Rather it derives its origin from OT predecessors When we understand that baptism comes from baptism especially in its sacramental expression in the priestly covenant reasons for the NT practice begin to make perfect sense Now Baptists have an argument that infant Baptists can finally understand because we are beginning our argument in the same place Yet we continue to have very baptistic conclusions as to the mode and recipients of baptism because we root baptism in baptism rather than circumcision
