Carolan, 2016-04-08 Decentering Biotechnology explores the nature of technology objects and patent law Investigating the patenting of organic life and the manner in which artifacts of biotechnology are given their object ive appearance Carolan details the enrollment mechanisms that give biotechnology its momentum Drawing on legal judgements and case studies this fascinating book examines the nature of object ification as a thought and a thing without which biotechnology as it is done today would not be possible Unable to reject biotechnology per se recognizing that such a rejection would essentialize the very object ive categories shown to be manufactured Carolan ultimately argues for doing biotechnology differently A theoretically sophisticated analysis of the nature of objects and the role of technology as a form of life which shapes the social landscape Decentering Biotechnology engages with questions of

Needless Hunger Betsy Hartmann, James K. Boyce, 1979 Why is a country with some of the world s most fertile land also the home of so many hungry people Betsy

Hartmann and James Boyce both Bengali speaking anthropologists spent two years in Bangladesh investigating the paradox of hunger in a basketcase country that actually produces enough grain for its people. Needless Hunger follows the history and structure of Bangladesh society and also draws us into the daily lives of the people of Katni the village where the authors lived. There is no natural barrier to filling the basic human needs of Bangladesh's people; they conclude. But there is the man-made barrier of a social order benefiting the few at the expense of the many. They found that the foreign aid pouring into the country actually entrenches the very elite who keep the majority powerless and hungry. Needless Hunger is also a book of hope describing the strength and potential of the Bangladesh people and their desire for a society where food-producing resources are controlled by the majority.
