The Nervous System

The nervous system is an extremely complex, highly intricate, and very sensitive structure that occupies the entire body. The main primary cells of the nervous system are neurons, but actually carry and carry information, and glial cells that support the neurons. The nervous system is divided into two main parts: the central nervous system (CNS) and the peripheral nervous system (PNS).

Central Nervous System

The central nervous system, or CNS, is the part of the nervous system that is located in the brain and spinal cord. It is the most complex part of the nervous system. The brain is the control center of the body, and is located within the protective skull. Layers of meningeal membranes and cerebrospinal fluid also protect the CNS. The spinal cord consists of a long, thin, tube-like structure that runs through the vertebral column. It has an S-shaped curve to the spinal cord, and a part of the spinal cord, called the cauda equina, extends from the lower back into the body.

Peripheral Nervous System

There are all parts of the nervous system that are not the CNS, and they make up the peripheral nervous system (PNS). The PNS is made up of all sensory neurons that are capable of receiving stimuli, and all motor neurons that are capable of responding to stimuli. For example, sensory neurons in the eye and ear detect light and sound, and motor neurons are involved in muscles that contract and relax.

The PNS is divided into two main parts: the somatic nervous system, which controls voluntary movements, and the autonomic nervous system, which controls involuntary movements. The somatic nervous system is the part of the PNS that controls voluntary movements, and is made up of all sensory and motor neurons that are involved in the control of voluntary movements. The autonomic nervous system is the part of the PNS that controls involuntary movements, and is made up of all sensory and motor neurons that are involved in the control of involuntary movements. The autonomic nervous system is divided into two main parts: the sympathetic nervous system, which is responsible for the "fight or flight" response, and the parasympathetic nervous system, which is responsible for the "rest and digest" response.

The Brain

The brain is the most complex part of the nervous system, and is located in the head. It is made up of billions of neurons and is the control center of the body. The brain is divided into two main parts: the cerebrum, which is the largest part of the brain and is responsible for most of the body's functions, and the cerebellum, which is smaller and is responsible for coordination and balance. The brain is also divided into two main parts: the left hemisphere, which is responsible for language and logic, and the right hemisphere, which is responsible for creativity and intuition. The brain is also divided into two main parts: the cerebrum, which is the largest part of the brain and is responsible for most of the body's functions, and the cerebellum, which is smaller and is responsible for coordination and balance.
