Premature Infants Richard J. Shaw, M.D., Sarah Horwitz, Ph.D., 2020-10-07 Although the benefits of psychological consultation in the pediatric setting are well established a gap often exists between the demand for these services and funding We have embarked on our longstanding goal to develop a group based intervention model for parents of premature infants adapting our manual of individual trauma focused cognitive behavioral therapy to help reduce feelings of parental isolation This book describes a more global approach to psychological consultation in the NICU integrating interventions that begin prior to the infant s conception and extend well beyond the NICU hospitalization Chapter 1 provides a context and review of the medical aspects of the NICU environment and the neurodevelopmental consequences of prematurity In Chapter 2 reviews the common psychological reactions of mothers of premature infants including specific risk factors associated with maternal psychological distress It also discusses the relationship between parental posttraumatic stress and infant outcomes as it relates to such issues as breastfeeding maternal infant interaction attachment and infant development Chapter 3 describes the form and prevalence of symptoms of paternal psychological distress and outline a curriculum for a group based intervention specifically designed to address fathers concerns Chapter 4 addresses developmental care interventions that overlap with interventions more narrowly focused on parental psychological distress Chapters 5 and 6 describe our intervention model in both the individual and group therapy formats Chapter 7 addresses vulnerable child syndrome which is associated with adverse developmental outcomes in children as well as overutilization of health care resources Application of the trauma model to the concept provides a framework to understand how parental behavior is altered in the context of trauma Finally Chapter 8 discusses how to implement a psychological intervention program in the NICU that includes screening the parents of premature infants for symptoms of psychological distress

Avery's Neonatology Mhairi G.

MacDonald, Mary M. Seshia, 2015-07-29 The practice of neonatology requires a careful balance between modern technology and the prevention of unintended damage to a newborn Early therapeutics were based on adult medicine with often catastrophic results to the baby As research and understanding of physiology and therapeutics have expanded care of the preterm and sick infant has improved drastically Avery s Neonatology is a practical guide to understanding the pathophysiology of the newborn so that appropriate treatment decisions can be made

Manual of Simulation in Healthcare

Richard H. Riley, 2008 Medical simulation is a relatively new science that is achieving respectability among healthcare educators worldwide Simulation and skills centres have become established to integrate simulation into mainstream education in all medical nursing and paramedical fields Borrowing from the experience and methodologies of industries that are using simulation medical educators are grappling with the problem of rapidly acquiring the skills and techniques required to implement simulation programmes into established curricula This book assists both novice and experienced workers in the field to learn from established practitioners in medical simulation Simulation has been used to enhance the educational experience in a diverse range of fields therefore a wide variety of disciplines are represented The book begins with a section on the logistics of establishing a simulation and skills centre and the inherent problems with funding equipment staffing and course development and promotion Section two deals with simulators and related training devices that are required to equip a stand alone or institution based centre The features strengths and weaknesses of training devices are presented to help the reader find the appropriate simulator to fulfil their training requirements There is a guide to producing scenarios and medical props that can enhance the training experience The third section covers adult education and it reviews the steps required to develop courses that comply with best practice in medical education Teaching skills facilitating problem based learning groups and debriefing techniques are especially important to multidisciplinary skills centres that find themselves becoming a centre for medical education The manual concludes with guides for the major specialties that use simulation including military paediatrics CPR and medical response teams obstetrics and anesthesia
