Smart Economy in Smart Cities T. M. Vinod Kumar, 2016-08-25 The present book highlights studies that show how smart cities promote urban economic development The book surveys the state of the art of Smart City

Economic Development through a literature survey The book uses 13 in depth city research case studies in 10 countries such as the North America Europe Africa and Asia to explain how a smart economy changes the urban spatial system and vice versa This book focuses on exploratory city studies in different countries which investigate how urban spatial systems adapt to the specific needs of smart urban economy The theory of smart city economic development is not yet entirely understood and applied in metropolitan regional plans Smart urban economies are largely the result of the influence of ICT applications on all aspects of urban economy which in turn changes the land use system It points out that the dynamics of smart city GDP creation takes different paths which need further empirical study hypothesis testing and mathematical modelling Although there are hypotheses on how smart cities generate wealth and social benefits for nations there are no significant empirical studies available on how they generate urban economic development through urban spatial adaptation This book with 13 cities research studies is one attempt to fill in the gap in knowledge base

Sustainable Growth in the African Economy Jeffrey James, 2017-03-27 The current growth path in sub Saharan Africa is not following the Lewis model where labour moves from low productivity agriculture to higher productivity manufacturing Instead it is moving directly to inappropriate import and labour saving methods This book seeks to show how this distorted growth process leaves out the major resource of these countries labour and ends up creating unstable employment and underemployment leading to inequality and poverty In this way it demonstrates how the entire growth process may be rendered unstable and unsustainable Sustainable Growth in the African Economy considers whether the relatively rapid growth of recent years can be maintained or improved upon with a focus on the process of industrialisation Basing itself on a well known dual economy model the proposed book focuses on several major problems of industrialisation which has long been seen as the means of structural change in an economy which begins from a low income level The book

considers how the future trajectory of sub Saharan Africa compares to recent success stories on other continents and explains how factors such as rapid population growth and capital and import intensive technology in manufacturing could foreshadow future social and political problems This book will be essential reading to students and policymakers who are concerned with the existing pattern of African growth Gender, Judging and the Courts in Africa J. Digital Africa Tania Begazo, Moussa Blimpo, Mark Dutz, 2023-04-04 All African countries need better and more jobs for their growing populations Digital Africa Technological Transformation for Jobs shows that broader use of productivity enhancing digital technologies by enterprises and households is imperative to generate such jobs including for lower skilled people At the same time broader use can support not only countries short term objective of postpandemic economic recovery but also their vision of economic transformation with more inclusive growth These outcomes are not automatic however Mobile internet availability has increased throughout the continent in recent years but Africa s uptake gap is the highest in the world Areas with at least 3G mobile internet service now cover 84 percent of country populations averaged across Sub Saharan Africa but only 22 percent use such services The average African business lags in the use of smartphones and computers as well as more sophisticated digital technologies that catalyze further productivity gains Two issues explain the usage gap the affordability of these new technologies and the willingness to use them For the 40 percent of Africans below the extreme poverty line mobile data plans alone would cost one third of their incomes in addition to the price of access devices apps and electricity Data plans for small and medium businesses are also more expensive than in other regions Moreover shortcomings in the quality of internet services and in the supply of attractive skill appropriate apps that promote entrepreneurship and raise earnings dampen people s willingness to use them For those countries already using these technologies the development payoffs are significant New empirical studies for this report add to the rapidly growing evidence that mobile internet availability directly raises enterprise productivity increases jobs and reduces poverty across Africa To realize these and other benefits more widely Africa s countries must implement complementary and mutually reinforcing policies to strengthen both consumers ability to pay and willingness to use digital technologies These interventions must prioritize productive use to generate large numbers of inclusive jobs in a region poised to benefit from a massive youthful workforce one projected to become the world s largest by the end of this century
