Developing Orthographies for Unwritten Languages Michael Cahill, Karen Rice, 2017-05-26 While investigating endangered languages many researchers become interested in developing literacy for these languages However often their linguistic training has not provided practical guidance in this area This book with contributions by experienced practitioners helps fill this gap Both foundational theory and specific case studies are addressed in this work Non linguistic factors are described particularly sociolinguistic issues that determine acceptability of orthographies A principled approach to the level of phonological representation for orthographies is proposed applying recent phonological theory The thorny issues of how to determine word breaks and how to mark tone in an orthography are explored Overly hasty orthographies and the benefits of allowing time for an orthography to settle are discussed Principles of the foundational chapters are further exemplified by detailed case studies from Mexico Peru California Nepal and Southeast Asia which vividly illustrate the variety of local conditions that must be taken into account The combination of theoretical and practical makes this book unique It will benefit those involved in helping establish orthographies for hitherto unwritten languages and provide concrete guidance through crucial issues Michael Cahill Ph D 1999 Ohio State University developed the Konni orthography in Ghana He was SIL s International Linguistics Coordinator for eleven years and is on the LSA s Committee on Endangered Languages and their Preservation Keren Rice Ph

Farewell to the World Marzio Barbagli, 2015-10-06 What drives a person to take his or her own life Why would an individual be willing to strap a bomb to himself and walk into a crowded marketplace blowing himself up at the same time as he kills and maims the people around him Does suicide or voluntary death have the same meaning today as it had in earlier centuries and does it have the same significance in China India and the Middle East as it has in the West How should we understand this distressing often puzzling phenomenon and how can we explain its patterns and variations over time In this wide ranging comparative study Barbagli examines suicide as a socio cultural religious and political phenomenon exploring the reasons that underlie it and the meanings it has acquired in different cultures throughout the world Drawing on a vast body of research carried out by historians anthropologists sociologists political scientists and psychologists Barbagli shows that a satisfactory theory of suicide cannot limit itself to considering the two causes that were highlighted by the great French sociologist mile Durkheim namely social integration and regulation Barbagli proposes a new account of suicide that links the motives for and significance attributed to individual actions with the people for whom and against whom individuals take their lives This new study of suicide sheds fresh light on the cultural differences between East and West and greatly increases our understanding of an often misunderstood act It will be the definitive history of suicide for many years to come
