A multi-billion-dollar opportunity - Repurposing agricultural support to transform food systems Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,United Nations Development Programme,United Nations Environment Programme,2021-09-14 Public support mechanisms for agriculture in many cases hinder the transformation towards healthier more sustainable equitable and efficient food systems thus actively steering us away from meeting the Sustainable Development Goals and targets of the Paris Agreement This report sets out the compelling case for repurposing harmful agricultural producer support to reverse this situation by optimizing the use of scarce public resources strengthening economic recovery from the COVID 19 pandemic and ultimately driving a food systems transformation that can support global sustainable development commitments The report provides policymakers with an updated estimate of past and current agricultural producer support for 88 countries projected up until 2030 The trends emerging from the analysis are a clear call for action at country regional and global levels to phase out the most distortive environmentally and socially harmful support such as price incentives and coupled subsidies and redirecting it towards investments in public goods and services for agriculture such as research and development and infrastructure as well as decoupled fiscal subsidies Overall the analysis highlights that while removing and or reducing harmful agricultural support is necessary repurposing initiatives that include measures to minimize policy trade offs will be needed to ensure a beneficial outcome overall The report confirms that while a few countries have started repurposing and reforming agricultural support broader deeper and faster reforms are needed for food systems transformation Thus it provides guidance in six steps on how governments can repurpose agricultural producer support and the reforms this will take In Search of Meadowlarks John M. review of Sri Lanka's education sector from early childhood education through higher education. With this book they attempt to answer three questions: How is Sri Lanka's education system performing especially with respect to participation rates, learning outcomes and labor market outcomes? How can the country address the challenges at each stage of the education process taking into account both country and international experience and also best practices? Which policy actions should Sri Lanka make a priority for the short and medium term? The authors identify the most critical constraints on performance and present strategic priorities and policy options to address them. To attain inclusive growth and become globally competitive, Sri Lanka needs to embark on integrated reforms across all levels of education. These reforms must address both short-term skill shortages and long-term productivity. As Sri Lanka moves up the development ladder, the priorities of primary, secondary and postsecondary education must be aligned to meet the increasingly complex education and skill requirements.
