

UPENN Supplemental Essay

Prompt:

Tell us about the world where you come from, your family, your ideologies, your experiences, and explain to us how your background has shaped your thinking.

Everyday I learn to become appreciative and humble when it comes to dealing with people who have a significant impact in my life. My family has persevered in encouraging me to continue my studies. I also have friends who have helped me a lot in my journey towards becoming a mature adult. Still, I need to make my own mark in this world, whether it is something that is small, or a very significant impact to the world. I understand that wherever my feet will lead me, the people who matters most in my life are the ones that have helped in shaping me who I am.

All throughout my life, my family have been working hard in order to support me. My parents are both from the Philippines. They moved here for greener pastures. I often hear that not everybody gets the chance to have education back home, and so they do their best to instill in me the need to be educated. They are also my driving force when it comes to making sound and moral decisions.

Everyday, I get to see people working hard to be different and unique. They do their best to be noticed. However, for me, I have accepted that I am but ordinary and average. I will never assume that i can change the world or the very person who can finally find a solution to cure cancer. However, what I am extremely proud of is that I have the determination and dedication to get me to where I really want to be. I never consider my aspirations and dreams to be limited. I know what I can achieve, and I will live my life believing in that.
