² These findings will also benefit those who are engaged in the study of the effects of social structure on the health of the individual.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions included a combination of cardiovascular and strength training exercises. The results of the study showed that the women who participated in the program experienced significant improvements in their physical fitness, including increases in cardiovascular endurance, muscle strength, and body composition. The findings suggest that a low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program can be an effective means of improving physical fitness in sedentary, middle-aged women.
