The Daunting Climate Change Jayarama Reddy Puthalpet, 2022-03-23 The book starts with an overview of Climate Science It discusses the signs of Warming the impacts and consequences on several sectors terrestrial and coastal ecosystems water resources ocean systems agriculture food production and food security human health and safety livelihoods and poverty Arctic populations low lying States so on Mathematical models to project future climate and the resulting concerns global adaptation experiences and opportunities for future execution are explained The mitigation approaches chiefly decarbonizing the energy sector by developing and applying clean low carbon energy sources and improving energy efficiency and the evolving geoengineering schemes are dealt Carbon pricing an economic tool to ensure emissions reductions and transition to a low carbon economy to stimulate sustainable growth are described The continued global efforts under the UN or otherwise until the recent Paris Agreement to arrive at policy responses to tackle this intriguing but daunting problem of climate change are vividly expounded Note T F does not sell or distribute the hardback in India Pakistan Nepal Bhutan Bangladesh and Sri Lanka

Issues for Debate in Social Policy CQ Researcher, 2014-05-27 This collection of non partisan reports focuses on 18 hot button social policy issues written by award winning CQ Researcher journalists As an annual that comes together just months before publication the volume is as current as possible And because it s CQ Researcher the social policy reports are expertly researched and written showing all sides of an issue Chapters follow a consistent organization exploring three issue questions then offering background current context and a look ahead as well as featuring a pro con debate box All issues include a chronology bibliography photos charts and figures

Carbon Politics and the Failure of the Kyoto Protocol Gerald Kutney, 2014-02-03 Carbon Politics and the Failure of Kyoto charts the framework and political evolution of the Kyoto Protocol negotiations and examines the ensuing failure of the international community to adequately address climate change The focus is not on the science or consequences of climate change but on the political gamesmanship of the major players throughout the UNFCCC negotiation process More than an updated history of the subject matter this book provides a detailed study of the carbon targets which became the biggest influencing factor on the reaction of nations to Kyoto s binding agreements The book provides an in depth analysis of the leading nations motives including the US China and Germany in entering the negotiations in particular their economic interests Despite the effort to combat climate change in politics that the negotiations represent the book concludes that an agreement which requires almost 200 very different nations to agree on a single protocol is doomed to failure The book offers a novel contribution to our understanding of this failure and suggests alternative frameworks and policies to tackle what is arguably the most complex political issue of our time

Planning and Design for Sustainable Urban Mobility Un-Habitat, 2013-10-30 Urban transport systems worldwide are faced by a multitude of challenges Among the most visible of these are the traffic gridlocks experienced on city roads and highways all over the world The prescribed solution to transport problems in most cities has thus been to build more infrastructures for cars with a limited number of cities improving public transport systems in a sustainable manner. However, a number of challenges faced by urban transport systems such as greenhouse gas emissions, noise, and air pollution and road traffic accidents do not necessarily get solved by the construction of new infrastructure. Planning and Design for Sustainable Urban Mobility argues that the development of sustainable urban transport systems requires a conceptual leap. The purpose of transportation and mobility is to gain access to destinations, activities, services, and goods. Thus, access is the ultimate objective of transportation. As a result, urban planning and design should focus on how to bring people and places together by creating cities that focus on accessibility rather than simply increasing the length of urban transport infrastructure or increasing the movement of people or goods. Urban form and the functionality of the city are therefore a major focus of this report, which highlights the importance of integrated land use and transport planning. This new report of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme (UN Habitat), the world's leading authority on urban issues, provides some thought-provoking insights and policy recommendations on how to plan and design sustainable urban mobility systems. The Global Report on Human Settlements is the most authoritative and up-to-date global assessment of human settlements conditions and trends. Preceding issues of the report have addressed such topics as Cities in a Globalizing World, The Challenge of Slums, Financing Urban Shelter, Enhancing Urban Safety and Security, Planning Sustainable Cities, and Cities and Climate Change.

The Big Stall Donald Gutstein, 2018-10-02 In fall 2015, the newly elected Trudeau government endorsed the Paris Agreement and promised to tackle global warming. In 2016, it released a major report which set out a national energy strategy embracing clean growth, technological innovation, and carbon pricing. Rather than putting in place tough measures to achieve the Paris targets, however, the government reframed global warming as a market opportunity for Canada's clean technology sector. The Big Stall traces the origins of the government's climate change plan back to the energy sector itself, in particular Big Oil. It shows how, in the last fifteen years, Big Oil has infiltrated provincial and federal governments, academia, media, and the non-profit sector to sway government and public opinion on the realities of climate change and what needs to be done about it. Working both behind the scenes and in high-profile networks, Canada's energy companies moved the debate away from discussion of the measures required to create a zero-carbon world and towards market-based solutions that will cut carbon dioxide emissions but not enough to prevent severe climate impacts. This is how Big Oil and think tanks unraveled the Kyoto Protocol and how Rachel Notley came to deliver the Business Council of Canada's energy plan. Donald Gutstein explains how and why the door has been left wide open for oil companies to determine their own futures in Canada and to go on drilling new wells, building new oil sands plants, and constructing new pipelines. This book offers the background information readers need to challenge politicians claiming they are taking meaningful action on global warming.

Consumption-Based Approaches in International Climate Policy Christian Lininger, 2015-03-13 This book analyses the potentials and consequences of a change from production-based to consumption-based approaches in international climate policy With the help of an analytical model the author investigates the effects of different policy variants on environmental effectiveness cost effectiveness carbon leakage competitiveness and the global distribution of income The economic legal and political background and the often contradictory findings on consumption based approaches are reviewed in great detail In the final chapters options for practical policy design are developed The book concludes that a switch to consumption orientation is not a policy tool whereby industrialized countries can unilaterally improve climate policy effectiveness but should rather be seen as a possible intermediate step on the way to a fully multilateral mitigation strategy

The Kyoto Manifesto for Global Economics Stomu Yamash'ta,Tadashi Yagi,Stephen Hill,2018-02-19 This book confronts the failings of current global economics to deliver the equity sustainability and community empowerment which humanity now needs to handle a troubled future The volume proposes an economy built from our society not the other way around The Kyoto Manifesto was built layer by layer over a period of 4 years based on broad ranging international symposia held in Kyoto between 2014 and 2017 hosted by the Center for the Creative Economy Doshisha University Not stopping at theory and untested ideas however the Manifesto proposes practical action that will make a difference including in the problematic technological and ecological context of humanity s immediate and long term future The book is unique and innovative for it moves adventurously across very broad territory The Manifesto draws from world philosophic arguments including specifically a critique of liberalism further exploring sociology cultural anthropology politics primatology and early humanity even quantum physics Argument is set within mainstream post 1972 economics and political economics as well as direct practical experience working to empower disadvantaged communities through the United Nations Most importantly the book s analysis is deeply informed by the practice of searching for what is sacred the ultimate essence of our humanity what we can be as a human race empowered fulfilled individuals deeply sharing and caring for each other across our separate cultures and lives Stomu Yamash ta s On Zen performances set the context for the Symposia bringing different religions and cultures together across their dividing boundaries into a coherent search for peace and harmony through sacred music Informed by alternate cultural paradigms for economics the book probes deeply into philosophies and practices that already exist within Eastern and Western societies and offer lessons for our future The result is an economics that stresses harmony with nature and balance in social relations It places an emphasis on community human sharing and trust as a platform for our future not separate from the global economy but integrated into its very foundations This is a book for all who care a plan for our sustainable future built from the best of what our humanity is and can offer

Green Obsession traces the long path that architect Stefano Boeri and his studio Stefano Boeri Architetti have followed in the last fifteen years of practice aiming at the redefinition of the relationship between city and nature The book follows a discursive thread alternating dialogues and scientific essays by some of the main protagonists who have contributed to widening the perspective on this subject helping to raise awareness while protecting the world and its biodiversity Cities have contributed for centuries to the promotion of some of humanity's greatest ideas we must now urgently include them as among the principal players in the environmental debate and at the forefront of any policy tackling and countering possibly reversing climate change Nevertheless even today one of the most significant technologies capable of absorbing CO<sub>2</sub> and restoring our environment is photosynthesis Planting trees in addition to protecting existing natural areas and biodiversity together with de carbonization renewable energies digitalization smart mobility and the circular economy could be the set of strategies necessary to tackle climate change Today the effects of the Anthropocene age are ever more visible changing our environment and affecting every species that lives within it Green Obsession offers a path to be taken a hard but still necessary paradigm shift even for architecture and urbanism that aims to give a voice to this much needed ecological transition This book aims to unveil the processes and the complexity involved in the search for a new kind of urbanism while raising questions and opening old wounds related to the relationship between the human species and Nature and finally putting these fragments together to create a portrait of our era We need to conceive cities as new green catalysts Now more than ever it is essential to act together as separate individuals and professionals joining the cause as members of the global community with a shared environmental strategy We all have to open the era of a new alliance between Nature and City With Contributions from Emanuele Coccia Jane Goodall Paul Hawken Cecil Konijnendijk David Miller Harini Nagendra Giuseppe Sala and Giorgio Vacchiano

Growth in Transition Friedrich Hinterberger, Elke Pirgmaier, Elisabeth Freytag, Martina Schuster, 2013-03-01 Stimulating growth through adjusting macroeconomic conditions remains the principal policy responses to pressing problems of unemployment poverty and environmental degradation However are the current policy approaches capable of tackling these problems by generating win win solutions or are they the root causes of these problems The current growth trajectory has neither lead to a reduction of our overall resource use as we use resources and energy more efficiently we consume more nor create the conditions for employment and well being Increasingly there is the realization that it is necessary to make substantial interventions into our national economies and create better framework conditions and incentive systems in order to more widely and rapidly develop and disseminate workable innovative solutions for realizing sustainable development This is the task of politics and the concrete design of the measures must be built upon a broad public debate and shared long term visions The authors of this book intend to trigger a dialogue among stakeholders about how we can shape this transformation process towards sustainability Following a detailed presentation of the key arguments for reconsidering the necessary conditions for sustainable economies an international cast of commentators from politics administration civil society business and science engage with the central question is there an alternative trajectory for Western economies that sustains wellbeing whilst confronting ecological and social breakdown Interdisciplinary
