What added, no doubt, to my hatred of the beast, was the discovery, on the morning after I brought it home, that like Pluto, it also had been deprived of one of its eyes. This circumstance, however, only endeared it to my wife.

With my aversion to this cat, however, its partiality for myself seemed to increase. It followed my footsteps with a pertinacity that would be difficult to make the reader comprehend. Whenever I sat, it would spring upon my knees, covering me with its loathsome caresses. If I arose to walk, it would get between my feet and thus nearly throw me down, or, fastening its long and sharp claws in my dress, clamber to my breast. At such times, although I longed to destroy it with a blow, I was yet withheld from so doing, partly by a memory of my former crime, but chiefly—let me confess it at once—by absolute dread of the beast.
