

We remember those who have fallen.

Armistice Sunday when we remember all of those who lost their lives protecting us.

RPG's and IED's are very destructive and fatal as well as explosive.

PTSD can cause severe ^{of trauma} trauma and insomnia thunder and lightning can trigger it.

Overhead you can see troops flying and fighting the enemy for our freedom.

Explosions from IED's and RPG's can cause loss of limb severe injury and often death.

Troops using burn pits to get rid of enemies weapons and their waste so the enemies can't reclaim them.

Remember those who lost their life saving you from death so you can live a longer life.

Young people sent out to battle to protect our country from those who want to take it from us.

 Howard Nemerov, 1990-12-17 Howard Nemerov has written often about wars great and small the overtly political and the deeply personal But only with the passage of time a heightening of technique and deepening of insight has he been able to write from his experience in World War II as he does here where historical past and personal history finally dovetail From The War in the Heavens to The War in the Streets Nemerov chronicles with devastating grace the harrowing of life These new poems of Howard Nemerov are the poems of a master at his best What is more they are accessible They speak out in a beautiful unclouded voice of the experience of a flyer of the Second World War Although as war poems they take their place among the best of that genre they resonate far beyond their history with an arresting immediacy Karl Shapiro Nemerov is the poet of our sanity his the vision of the heroic ordinary Forty years after W W II Nemerov's experiences in that war translate into timeless poetry Nemerov's poetry will outlast our generation to read it now is to take part in something of ourselves and our world that will and should endure The Virginia Quarterly Review Throughout all his verse formal language sets up a
