This sample paper on Were Romeo And Juliet Really In Love offers a framework of relevant facts based on recent research in the field. Read the introductory part, body, and conclusion of the paper below.

Love is a universal language that may be interpreted in several different ways. According to St. Paul, the criteria stated in the bible passage 1 Corinthians 13:4-7 must be followed in order for one to have true love. In William Shakespeare's classical tragedy of Romeo and Juliet, love is the dominant theme; Romeo and Juliet's romantic love being the most significant. This story revolves around the fast-paced relationship between Romeo, the young heir of the Montagues and Juliet, the daughter of the Capulets. Because of an ancient feud amongst the two families, Romeo and Juliet are forced to keep their relationship hidden causing their love to end in just a matter of days. St. Paul's standard of love defines itself to be: patient, truthful and honest.

Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It does not dishonor others, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres.

(1 Corinthians 13:4-7)

The above quote is a very specific description of love according to St. Paul. Although Romeo and Juliet have one of the most iconic love stories to date, it is often wondered if their love lived up to its reputation and the question still remains as to if they were ever truly in love. Based on the standards specified in 1 Corinthians 13:4-7, Romeo and Juliet were not in love because they did not practice patience, they dishonored their families and friends, and they were egotistical.

Why Romeo And Juliet Were Not In Love

The virtue of patience was not demonstrated in the relationship between Romeo and Juliet. At the beginning of the play, Romeo is heartbroken over a girl named Rosaline who does not share mutual feelings for him; however, as soon as he sees Juliet he loses all of the emotions he has for Rosaline and they immediately fall in love. After Romeo and Juliet's second encounter that night, they exchange vows of affection and Romeo insists that they get married even though Juliet is skeptical. She says, "Although I joy in thee, I have no joy of this contract tonight. It is too rash, too unadvised, too sudden" (Act II: II: 116-118); however, Romeo is eager to have her hand in marriage and asks, "O wilt thou leave me so unsatisfied?" (Act II: II: 125). If Romeo had truly loved Juliet he would have been enduring and waited until she was fully prepared to exchange her vows with him.

Juliet also does not follow Paul's criteria that states one must have patience. This is shown in the following quote where she insists that Romeo professes his love for her or she will be upset.
