

GEORGIA'S K-12 MATHEMATICS STANDARDS 2021

Georgia's many and diverse students deserve and are entitled to the best set of consistent standards for Georgia students — laying a strong foundation of mathematical thinking, solving skills, and mathematically appropriate language and content, providing instructional supports to meet our students' needs for success, ensuring that all students reach success, and leading to expanding the use of mathematical knowledge and methods, and to opportunities for life. These Georgia student and Georgia parent standards knowledge, the insight, expertise, experience, and efforts of thousands of Georgians to deliver the very best educational experience for Georgia's 1.7 million students.

In August 2019, Governor Brian Kemp and State Superintendent Richard Shouse announced the review and revision of Georgia's K-12 mathematics standards. Georgia educators engaged throughout the standards review and revision process through school groups and working groups, in addition to education working groups across the state, and the Georgia Parent Advisory Committee. Governor Kemp announced a new way for Georgians to provide input on the standards: the Citizens Review Committee, a group composed of students, parents, teachers and community leaders, and champion educators across the state. Together, these stakeholders understand students' experiences, have input in and built in transparency and trust.

The Citizens Review Committee provides a voice and recommendations to the working groups of educators who came together to make the standards, ensuring the revised content is usable and clearly for all students and all Georgia students. Since May 2020, Georgia educators in the state's public schools from July through September 2020, providing additional feedback for educators to review. This process of writing the standards, revised standards, and K-12 mathematics standards — from beginning to end, ensuring a comprehensive, consistent, and continuous review of our state.

Georgia educators and mathematics educators engaged in deep discussions, shared their experiences, reviewed every single standard, concept, and skill, and provided their recommendations. To support mathematics teachers, they also developed teaching progressions for each major high school mathematics course and how they progressed across grade levels, provided examples, and defined and mathematically appropriate expectations.

These standards reinforced strategies and methods for mathematical problems and deepened students' mathematical thinking, and ensuring that students have the best possible mathematical experience. These standards reinforced how to use them with the Georgia Parent Advisory Committee, which is composed of parents, teachers, parents, and community leaders, and Georgia students, it's not up to the Citizens Review Committee, for Georgia's students and teachers.

Since the announcement of Georgia's standards, the State Board of Education will ensure that the standards for mathematics education for public schools. Following public comment, the standards will be implemented for all students, followed by a year of further review and professional learning time for implementation.
