

Answer:

Friction is a force that opposes motion in all contacted surfaces. This will occur with particles (eg. vehicles) experiencing its greatest opposing resistance when direction starts changing and sliding motion. Friction follows in the direction opposite from surface that will not (moving), sliding, opposite to the direction opposite from moving surface.

1. Calculating Friction

In the illustration below, a force of 50 N is applied to an object. Friction is opposing.

Calculate the force of friction.

What are the forces of friction? (friction is the opposing force opposing the moving surface).

Answer:

There is also a diagram for finding friction:

Friction:

$$\text{Friction Force (N)} = \mu \times \text{Normal Force (N)}$$

In this question:

• μ is the coefficient of friction.

• μ is the coefficient of friction.

• μ is the coefficient of friction (from previous question).

Example: A block is sliding on a surface. The coefficient of friction is 0.2. What is the friction force opposing the block sliding?

$$\begin{aligned} \mu &= 0.2 \text{ N} \\ \mu &= 0.2 \text{ N} \\ \mu &= 0.2 \text{ N} \end{aligned}$$

The friction force is 2 N (opposite to the force).

2. Finding Friction

Friction opposes motion and acts from the surface of the object. The force of friction is always in the opposite direction to the motion of the object.

1. A block is pushed on a surface. The force of friction is 10 N. The coefficient of friction is 0.2. What is the force of friction opposing the motion?
