Body membranes, which cover body surfaces, line its cavities, and form protective sheets around organs, fall into two major categories. These are epithelial membranes (skin, epidermis, mucosae, and serosae) and the connective tissue synovial membranes.

Topics for review in this chapter include a comparison of structure and function of various membranes, anatomical characteristics of the skin (composed of the connective tissue dermis and the epidermis) and its derivatives, and the manner in which the skin responds to both internal and external stimuli to protect the body.
