Madness on the Couch Edward Dolnick, 1998 Madness on the Couch tells the dramatic story of psychiatry's failed quest to conquer mental illness through talk therapy. Republic of Noise Diana Senechal, 2012 In this book, Diana Senechal confronts a culture that has come to depend on instant updates and communication at the expense of solitude. Schools today emphasize rapid group work and fragmented activity, not the thoughtful study of complex subjects. The Internet offers contact with others throughout the day and night; we lose the ability to be apart even in our minds. Yet solitude plays an essential role in literature, education, democracy, relationships, and matters of conscience. Throughout its analyses and argument, the book calls not for drastic changes but for a subtle shift in attitude that honors solitude without descending into dogma. Provided by publisher

The Man Who Wasn't There Anil Ananthaswamy, 2016-08-02 In the tradition of Oliver Sacks, science journalist Anil Ananthaswamy skillfully inspects the bewildering connections among brain, body, mind, self, and society by examining a range of neuropsychological ailments, from autism and Alzheimer's to out-of-body experiences and body integrity identity disorder. Award-winning science writer Anil Ananthaswamy smartly explores the concept of self by way of several mental conditions that eat away at patients' identities, showing we learn a lot about being human from people with a fragmented or altered sense of self. Ananthaswamy travelled the world to meet those who suffer from maladies of the self, interviewing patients, psychiatrists, philosophers, and neuroscientists along the way. He charts how the self is affected by Asperger's, autism, Alzheimer's, epilepsy, schizophrenia, among many other mental conditions, revealing how the brain constructs our sense of self. Each chapter is anchored with stories of people who experience themselves differently from the norm. Readers meet individuals in various stages of Alzheimer's disease, where the loss of memory and cognition results in the loss of some aspects of the self. We meet a woman who recalls the feeling of her first major encounter with schizophrenia, which she describes as an outside force controlling her. Ananthaswamy also looks at several less familiar conditions, such as Cotard's syndrome, in which patients believe they are dead, and those with body integrity identity disorder, where the patient seeks to have a body part amputated because it doesn't belong to them. Moving nimbly back and forth from the individual stories to scientific analysis, The Man Who Wasn't There is a wholly original exploration of the human self, which raises fascinating questions about the mind-body connection.

Fighting for Their Lives Susannah Sheffer, 2013-03-15 How do attorneys who represent clients facing the death penalty cope with the stress and trauma of their work? Through conversations with twenty of the most experienced and dedicated post-conviction capital defenders in the United States, Fighting for Their Lives explores this emotional territory for the first time. What it is like for these capital defenders in their last visits or phone calls with clients who are about to be taken to the execution chamber. Or the next mornings in their lives with their families in their dreams and flashbacks and moments alone.

in the car What is it like to do this work year after year These attorneys had on average spent nineteen years doing capital defense Through vivid interviews amplified by the author's responses and commentary these attorneys reveal aspects of their internal experience that they have never talked about until now How do capital defenders manage the weight of the responsibility they carry To what extent do they experience symptoms of trauma in the aftermath of losing a client to execution or as a result of the cumulative effects of engaging in capital defense work What motivates them and what do they draw upon in order to keep engaging in such emotionally demanding work Have they considered practicing other types of law What can we learn from capital defenders not only about the deep and long term effects of the death penalty but also about broader human questions of hope effectiveness success failure strength fragility and perseverance Rhetorical

Bodies Jack Selzer, Sharon Crowley, 1999 What significance does the physical material body still have in a world of virtual reality and genetic cloning How do technology and postmodern rhetoric influence our understanding of the body And how can our discussion of the body affect the way we handle crises in public policy the politics of race and ethnicity issues of family values that revolve around sexual and gender identities the choices revolving around reproduction and genome projects and the spread of disease Leading scholars in rhetoric and communication as well as literary and cultural studies address some of the most important topics currently being discussed in the human sciences The essays collected here suggest the wide range of public arenas in which rhetoric is operative from abortion clinics and the World Wide Web to the media's depiction of illiteracy and the Donner Party These studies demonstrate how the discourse of AIDS prevention or Demi Moore's beautiful pregnancy call to mind the physical nature of being human and the ways in which language and other symbols reflect and create the physical world Medical Humanities and Disability Studies Stuart Murray, 2023-09-21

Medical humanities and disability studies are disciplines at the cutting edge of innovative critical work in the study of health and disability but to date there has been no book length examination of the relationship between the two Although each has emerged from different heritages they share many features from discussing the complexities of embodiment identifying processes of exclusion and championing user participation to a commitment to new forms of critical writing In Disciplines explores the connections between the two disciplines in detail It presents a series of provocations about how they interact the forms their practice take and their strengths and weaknesses as working methods With a focus on life stories that give accounts of health and disability experiences it mixes creative and critical writing in an accessible manner aimed at a wide audience in both Medical Humanities and Disability Studies and across new humanities more widely The book asserts that both disciplines need to evaluate and challenge core assumptions if they are to remain critically relevant in the evolving study of social and cultural understanding of health and disability Signifying Bodies G.
