

The diagram illustrates the process of acid rain formation and its deposition on a limestone surface. At the top, a grey cloud contains the text 'Sulphur dioxide incorporated into water droplets in clouds'. Below the cloud, a large downward arrow points towards the ground, flanked by numerous small water droplets. To the left of this arrow, the text 'DRY DEPOSITION' is written above a smaller downward arrow pointing to a 'Deposition crust in sheltered area' on the ground. To the right of the large arrow, the text 'WET DEPOSITION' is written above 'Raindrops of sulphurous acid'. At the bottom, a horizontal line represents the 'LIMESTONE SURFACE', which is depicted with a pattern of small circles and dots. A horizontal arrow points to the right above the limestone surface.
