School? Alexandria Walton Radford,2013-06-07 Most of us think that valedictorians can write their own ticket By reaching the top of their class they have proven their merit so their next logical step should be to attend the nation's very best universities Yet in Top Student Top School Alexandria Walton Radford of American Institutes for Research reveals that many valedictorians do not enroll in prestigious institutions Employing an original five state study that surveyed nine hundred public high school valedictorians she sets out to determine when and why valedictorians end up at less selective schools showing that social class makes all the difference Radford traces valedictorians paths to college and presents damning evidence that high schools do not provide sufficient guidance on crucial factors affecting college selection such as reputation financial aid and even the application process itself Left in a bewildering environment of seemingly similar options many students depend on their parents for assistance and this allows social class to rear its head and have a profound impact on where students attend Simply put parents from less affluent backgrounds are far less informed about differences in colleges quality the college application process and financial aid options which significantly limits their child's chances of attending a competitive school even when their child has already managed to become valedictorian Top Student Top School pinpoints an overlooked yet critical juncture in the education process one that stands as a barrier to class mobility By focusing solely on valedictorians it shows that students paths diverge by social class even when they are similarly well prepared academically and this divergence is traceable to specific failures by society failures that we can and should address Watch an interview of Alexandria Walton Radford discussing her book here <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=F81c1D1BpY0>

Engines of Anxiety Wendy Nelson Espeland, Michael Sauder, Wendy Espeland, 2016-05-09 Students and the public routinely consult various published college rankings to assess the quality of colleges and universities and easily compare different schools However many institutions have responded to the rankings in ways that benefit neither the schools nor their students In Engines of Anxiety sociologists Wendy Espeland and Michael Sauder delve deep into the mechanisms of law school rankings which have become a top priority within legal education Based on a wealth of observational data and over 200 in depth interviews with law students university deans and other administrators they show how the scramble for high rankings has affected the missions and practices of many law schools Engines of Anxiety tracks how rankings such as those published annually by the U S News World Report permeate every aspect of legal education beginning with the admissions process The authors find that prospective law students not only rely heavily on such rankings to evaluate school quality but also internalize rankings as expressions of their own abilities and flaws For example they often view rejections from first tier schools as a sign of personal failure The rankings also affect the decisions of admissions officers who try to balance admitting diverse classes with preserving the school's ranking which is dependent on factors such as the median LSAT score of the entering class Espeland and Sauder find that law schools face pressure to admit applicants with high test scores over lower scoring candidates who possess other favorable credentials Engines of Anxiety also reveals how rankings have influenced law schools career service departments Because graduates job placements play a major role in the rankings many institutions have shifted their career services resources toward tracking placements and away from counseling and network building In turn law firms regularly use school rankings to recruit and screen job candidates perpetuating a cycle in which highly ranked schools enjoy increasing prestige As a result the rankings create and reinforce a rigid hierarchy that penalizes lower tier schools that do not conform to the restrictive standards used in the rankings The authors show that as law schools compete to improve their rankings their programs become more homogenized and less accessible to non traditional students The ranking system is considered a valuable resource for learning about more than 200 law schools Yet Engines of Anxiety shows that the drive to increase a school's rankings has negative consequences for students educators and administrators and has implications for all educational programs that are quantified in similar ways

Toward a Healthier Garden State Michael R. Greenberg, Dona Schneider, 2023-04-22 While New Jersey now frequently appears near the top in listings of America's healthiest states this has not always been the case The fluctuations in the state's overall levels of health have less to do with the lifestyle choices of individual residents and more to do with broader structural issues ranging from pollution to urban design to the consolidation of the health care industry This book uses the past fifty years of New Jersey history as a case study to illustrate just how much public policy decisions and other upstream factors can affect the health of a state's citizens

It reveals how economic and racial disparities in health care were exacerbated by bad policies regarding everything from zoning to education to environmental regulation The study further chronicles how New Jersey struggled to deal with public health crises like the AIDS epidemic and the crack epidemic Yet it also explores how the state has developed some of the nation s most innovative responses to public health challenges and then provides policy suggestions for how we might build an even healthier New Jersey
