Project-Based Learning for Academically-Able Students Joseph C.L. Tan, 2016-11-24 This book explores the dynamic approach to student-centred learning known as project-based learning or project work. It addresses both the concepts and practical application of project-based learning to enhance teaching and learning. It describes empirical case study research into the impact of research-based project work on independent learning for academically able secondary school students at Hwa Chong Institution, a premier independent school in Singapore. The research investigated how students dealt with an innovative project based learning curriculum built on a social constructivist approach designed to foster independent learning attitudes The students had to research and initiate their own projects and see through the entire process with guidance from their teacher mentors The case study findings give rich insights into student perspectives and experiences as they engage in projects and respond to real life challenges and problems A new theory of project based learning is presented in the form of theoretical propositions The research has implications for the professional development of teachers as project work mentors to help prepare their students to be future proof in dealing with 21st century study work and social challenges with confidence The book highlights compelling reasons for schools to include some form of research based project work within their curricula thereby allowing students to engage in collaborative authentic research

Handbook of Creativity John A. Glover, Royce R. Ronning, Cecil R. Reynolds, 2013-03-09 The motivation underlying our development of a handbook of creativity was different from what usually is described by editors of other such volumes Our sense that a handbook was needed sprang not from a deluge of highly erudite studies calling out for organization nor did it stem from a belief that the field had become so fully articulated that such a book was necessary to provide summation and reference Instead this handbook was conceptualized as an attempt to provide structure and organization for a field of study that from our perspective had come to be a large scale example of a degenerating research program see Brown Chapter 1 The handbook grew out of a series of discussions that spanned several years At the heart of most of our interactions was a profound unhappiness with the state of research on creativity Our consensus was that the number of good works published on creativity each year was small and growing smaller Further we could not point to a journal text or professional organization that was providing leadership for the field in shaping a scientifically sound framework for the development of research programs in creativity At the same time we were casting about for a means of honoring a dear friend E Paul Torrance Our decision was that we might best be able to honor Paul and influence research on creativity by developing a handbook designed to challenge traditional perspectives while offering research agendas based on contemporary psychological views
