Happiness Has a Slippery Tail Abla Farhoud, 2025-10-14 This novel paints the portrait of a Lebanese family that has settled in Montreal. The central figure is Dounia, a 75 year old mother and grandmother. Hers is a story of loss she first leaves her own village to live in her husband's hometown and then is wrenched from her homeland not once but twice to live in a strange land whose language and customs are foreign to her. Dounia can neither read nor write and she speaks only Arabic. Illiterate yet perceptive, nourished by Lebanese proverbs and pearls of wisdom, she has a unique and captivating voice. She struggles yes but manages to achieve fulfilment in her new world. My home is where my grandchildren are clinging to my neck, calling me Sitto. Dounia, in my language, I want to die where my children and my grandchildren live. Abla Farhoud was an actor and playwright before becoming a novelist in 1998 with the publication of this novel, the French title of which was Le bonheur à la queue glissante, awarded the France Qu'bec Philippe Rossillon Prize. Other novels followed including Le Sourire de la petite Juive, published in English as Hutchison Street, Le dernier des Snoreux, and the posthumous book Havre Saint Pierre. Abla Farhoud passed away in 2021.

Reframing the American Dream Shawn Chandler Bingham, Michaela Emily Howells, 2024-12-31 More than a fad, tiny housing reflects a long history of alternative living and offers an interdisciplinary and sometimes contradictory window into consumerism, structural equity, personal aspirations, and political landscapes. Despite traditional housing ideals and challenging local building codes, tiny housing has garnered significant interest from individuals, political leaders, developers, big box stores, and curious viewers of HGTV. Reframing the American Dream draws on the expertise of urban planners, architects, public policy researchers, sociologists, and anthropologists who use tiny housing as a lens to explore critical questions. How can tiny housing help address the increasing demand for affordable housing How are tiny homes influencing local and national politics How does tiny housing highlight structural inequities related to disability homelessness gender and race What are the implications for building codes and sustainable construction Can they raise awareness about environmental issues How have tiny homes been integrated into mainstream culture and what impact might corporate interests have on housing markets What practical challenges do tiny housers face How does tiny housing fit with housing dreams of the past and present Featuring case studies interviews and surveys Reframing the American Dream provides a deeper understanding beyond glossy media portrayals connecting individual experiences with cultural ideals and institutional power

This book examines the growing trend for housing models that shrink private living space and seeks to understand the implications of these shrinking domestic worlds. Small spaces have become big business. Reducing the size of our homes and the amount of stuff within them is increasingly sold as a catch all solution to the stresses of modern life and the need to reduce our carbon footprint. Shrinking living space is being repackaged in a neoliberal capitalist context as a lifestyle choice rather than the consequence of diminishing choice in the face of what has become a long term housing crisis. What does this mean for how we live in the long term and is there a dark side to the promise of a simpler more sustainable home life?

Shrinking Domesticities brings together research from across the social sciences planning and architecture to explore these issues. From co living developments to the Tiny House Movement self storage units to practices of de stuffification and drawing on examples from across Europe North America and Australasia the authors of this volume seek to understand both what micro living is bringing to our societies and what it may be eroding.

The Happy Bottom Riding Club Lauren Kessler, 2000-05-23 Pancho Barnes was a force of nature a woman who lived a big messy colorful unconventional life. She ran through three fortunes four husbands and countless lovers. She outflew Amelia Earhart outsmarted Howard Hughes outdrank the Mexican Army and out maneuvered the U S government. In The Happy Bottom Riding Club award winning author Lauren Kessler tells the story of a high spirited headstrong woman who was proud of her successes unabashed by her failures and the architect of her own legend. Florence Pancho Barnes was a California heiress who inherited a love of flying from her grandfather a pioneer balloonist in the Civil War. Faced with a future of domesticity and upper crust pretensions she ran away from her responsibilities as wife and mother to create her own life. She cruised South America. She trekked through Mexico astride a burro. She hitchhiked halfway across the United States. Then in the late 1920s she took to the skies one of a handful of female pilots. She was a barnstormer a racer a cross country flier and a Hollywood stunt pilot. She was for a time the fastest woman on earth flying the fastest civilian airplane in the world. She was an intimate of movie stars a script doctor for the great director Erich von Stroheim and later in life a drinking buddy of the supersonic jet jockey Chuck Yeager. She ran a wild and wildly successful desert watering hole known as the Happy Bottom Riding Club the raucous bar and grill depicted in The Right Stuff. In The Happy Bottom Riding Club Lauren Kessler presents a portrait both authoritative and affectionate of a woman who didn't play by women's rules a woman of large appetites emotional financial and sexual who called herself the greatest conversation piece that ever existed.
