

S.M.A.R.T. GOALS

SPECIFIC- A specific goal has a much greater chance of being accomplished than a general goal.

Who will eat together? What do we want to accomplish? (healthier eating, social time, both or something else?) Where will we eat? Who will plan and prepare the meal?

MEASURABLE- Keeping track of progress gives incentives to keep going.

How many times will we eat together? How will we track our meals together? (Mark on a calendar, make a list, etc?)

ATTAINABLE- Goals are realistic and attainable. While an attainable goal may stretch a group to achieve it, the goal is not extreme.

How often it is reasonable for you to have family meals depends on your unique situation and past practice. If you are newer to eating together, a goal of once a week would be a place to start.

RELEVANT- When you identify goals that are most important to you, you begin to figure out ways you can make them come true.

If you are searching for a way to improve the health, academic performance or bonds in your family, mealtimes are one way to make it happen.

TIME-BOUND- A time-bound goal is intended to establish a sense of urgency and prevent goals from being overtaken by the day-to-day crises that invariably arise.

Setting a day or time of the week for your meals together makes it more likely that they will happen because you can write it on a calendar, set aside time, etc. Saying you will eat together on Saturday morning, Sunday noon, or Wednesday night is more powerful than saying you plan to eat together.
