The Patentability of Software Anton Hughes, 2019-02-18 This book explores the question of whether software should be patented It analyses the ways in which the courts of the US the EU and Australia have attempted to deal with the problems surrounding the patentability of software and describes why it is that the software patent issue should be dealt with as a patentable subject matter issue rather than as an issue of novelty or nonobviousness Anton Hughes demonstrates that the current approach has failed and that a fresh approach to the software patent problem is needed The book goes on to argue against the patentability of software based on its close relationship to mathematics Drawing on historical and philosophical accounts of mathematics in pursuit of a better understanding of its nature and focusing the debate on the conditions necessary for mathematical advancement the author puts forward an analytical framework centred around the concept of the useful arts This analysis both explains mathematics and therefore software s nonpatentability and offers a theory of patentable subject matter consistent with Australian American and European patent law

Why Customers Would Rather Have a Smartphone than a Car Cor Molenaar,2016-03-03 Why Customers Would Rather Have a Smartphone than a Car explores some of the fundamental changes in consumer behaviour Why do we buy less in shops and more on the internet Why do we spend more on gadgets smartphones and apps and not more on food holidays or clothing Why do most business people only look at symptoms and not the causes of changing customer behaviour The new generation buys differently from the baby boomers they have different priorities and preferences The internet has changed us in the way we think act and communicate Whilst many retailers now understand the need for change few of them have established convincing or sustainable models for the future Cor Molenaar argues that by understanding the drivers behind these new consumer behaviours retailers can identify the opportunities this represents and adapt their offering accordingly The kind of relationship retailing he advocates involves the way the retailer interacts with their customer the new environment that they need to sustain along with their ability to relate customer data technology and new services The author interweaves examples from traditional and virtual retailing with his research on consumer psychology and buying behaviour to offer a sophisticated and at times challenging guide for all those involved in retailing as well as those responsible for planning and designing social and retail space
