Tema's midcentury founding a prime objective of governing authorities was to cultivate self-contained citizens by means of tightly orchestrated domestic infrastructure and centralized control of bodily excrement to both develop and depoliticize the new nation. Comparing infrastructural innovations across the city Chalfin excavates how Tema residents pursue novel approaches to urban waste and sanitation built on the ruins of the inherited order profoundly altering the urban public sphere. Once decreed a private matter to be guaranteed by state authorities excrement becomes a public issue collectively managed by private persons. Pushing self-care into public space and extending domestic responsibility for public well-being and bodily outputs popularly devised waste infrastructures are a decisive arena to make claims, build coalitions and cultivate status. Confounding high modernist ideals excremental infrastructures unlock bodily waste's diverse political potentials.

The focus is on papers which approach issues in creole studies with novel perspectives, address understudied pidgin and creole varieties or compellingly argue for controversial positions. The papers demonstrate how pidgins and creoles shed light on issues such as verb movement, contact-induced language change and its gradations, discourse management via tense aspect particles, language genesis, substratal transfer and Universal Grammar and cover a wide range of contact languages ranging from English and French-based creoles through Portuguese creoles of Africa and Asia, Sango, Popular Brazilian Portuguese, West African Pidgin Englishes and Hawaiian Creole English.
